TUNNEY RETAINS HEAVYWEIGHT FIGHT CROWN

Within a Second of Being Knocked Out in the Seventh Round, Stirring Rally in Last Three Gives Champion Decision Over Jack Dempsey, Fighting to Regain Title

By ALLAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Chicago, Sept. 23—Gene Tunney today began his second year's term of office as heavyweight champion of the world, but only after the backers of his conquered opponent, Jack Dempsey, had vigorously demanded a "recount" of the vital moments in their spectacular battle at Soldiers' Field.

The stalwart, handsome marine repeated his victory of exactly a year ago by the same verdict, a decision, at the end of ten rounds. But this time he came within a second of being knocked off the heavyweight throne—dumped, dazed and shaken to the floor in the seventh round for a count of nine, but actually, in the opinion of ringside observers, took from 12 to 15 seconds.

STIRRING RALLY

Tunney's hand was raised in triumph, decisively earned by a stirring rally through the last three rounds that had Dempsey on the verge of a knockout himself in the final round.

The champion was still a champion and fighting like one at the finish, but it seemed to thousands that the gods of fortune were with him, that but for the "break" in the seventh round and the interpretation of the Illinois Boxing Commission's knockdown rules, he might have been counted out and seen his $1,000,000-crown pass back to its old wearer. Knocked down by a sudden furious and two-fisted assault in the first minute of the seventh round and holding the ropes groggily as he sat on the floor, Tunney was saved from a possible knockout by an official ruling that compelled a halt in the count until Dempsey had gone to the "farthest corner."

Instead of the count being started and continued uninterrupted—as in the old prizering rules—from the time Tunney hit the floor from the effects of a righ-hand smash and a short left hook, the toll was delayed several precious seconds until he had the stamina, boxing ability and courage to pull himself back from the brink of disaster, to batter his way to victory after it seemed that one more solid wallop would have ended his regin as king.

TWO GREAT TRIBUTES

At the finish, there was a mighty ovation for the gameness, for the unquenchable spirit of one of the greatest battlers of all time, Dempsey—but there was a great, if not a greater tribute, to the blonde, blue-eyed giant who came back to slash and cut his foe into helplessness at the end. It was a tribute of the world's greatest and most expensive fight crowd to a thrilling bout and its brilliant actors. It came from a throng that numbered close to 150,000 and that paid approximately $2,800,000, figures that surpassed anything the golden era of the ring has known. It was the climax of Tex Rickard's mightiest promotion venture in the country's biggest sports arena, a spectacle that dazzled the eye with its vast expanse and brought the great and near-great together as they never have been assembled before for a sports event.

LEVINE FORCED TO LAND IN DISTANCE HOP

Rain Halts Attempt to Fly From England to India

With Capt. Hinchcliffe Started Out To-day on 4,750-Mile Flight

Vienna, Sept. 23.—The attempt of Charles A. Levine and Captain Walter Hinchcliffe to set a new non-stop fight record ended to-day when the monoplane Columbia landed here at 5.58 p.m. in a pouring rain.

Cologne, Germany, Sept. 23.—An aeroplane, believed to be the Columbia, carrying Charles A. Levine, was sighted over here at 1 p.m. It was flying in a southeasterly direction.

Cologne is approximately 375 miles from the plane's starting point, Cranwell, Eng.

Cranwell, Eng., Sept. 23.—Balked by bad weather in his desire to fly back to North America, Charles A. Levine, stormy petrel of the air, took off with Captain Walter Hinchcliffe this morning after many postponements in an endeavor to beat the long distance non-stop record in an easterly direction.

Their goal was understood to be Delhi, capital of India, approximately 4,750 miles from Cranwell, or, with good luck, Calcutta, 800 miles further. Either point will by far surpass the record set by Levine and Clarence Chamberlin in their flight from New York to Germany in the Columbia, the same monoplane used in the present attempt.

The father of the victim, W. Naud, and another member of the family, Aegide, fourteen, had a narrow escape from the burning building.

The fire is suspected of having started by an incendiary. One man is being held in custody as a material witness.

BAIL GRANTED IN EXTRADITION CASE

Rev. Father Patrick A. O'Connor Granted Freedom Pending Argument

Writs of Habeas and Corpus and Certiori Taken Out Here

Writs of habeas corpus and certiori, giving the right to speak to a motion for a stay of extradition proceedings, were secured by counsel on behalf of Rev. Father Patrick A. O'Connor at 7.30 p.m. yesterday, when W. B. Cochrane, Vancouver solicitor, journeyed twenty-five miles from Victoria to the residence of Chief Justice Hunter at Shawnigan Lake.

No Supreme Court judges were in the city at the time, and, Mr. Cochrane succeeded in obtaining a hearing after an all-day search for an audience.

Counsel secured the release of the priest on bail in the sum of $5,000 in two sureties of $2,500 each, with writs returnable at 3 p.m. Monday, when the case will be argued before the Chief Justice here.

Rev. Father O'Connor was concerned in extradition proceedings before Judge Cayley in Vancouver, when the United States authorities asked for his custody on warrants originating in the State of Alabama, where it is asserted the priest is wanted to face trial for alleged complicity in a criminal operation.

A former application for the writs giving him leave to reopen the extradition proceedings was made before Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald in Vancouver, and refused.

No Word of Plane Spirit of Hollywood

Salt Lake City, Sept. 23.—No word concerning the fate of the aeroplane "Spirit of Hollywood" bearing Marion Mack, film star and Frank Tomick, pilot, had been received at the Salt Lake airport to-day. The ship, a Ryan monoplane, was due here Wednesday afternoon, en route to Chicago bearing best wishes from the motion picture colony to Jack Dempsey.

BOTH ENTRIES FAIL IN NON-STOP HOP ACROSS CONTINENT

Canadian and U.S. Flyers Land in Montana on New York-Spokane Flight

Spokane, Sept. 23.—The fifth and most featured national air derby, a nonstop race from New York to Spokane, fizzled yesterday when both entries Eddie Stinson, and A. C. "Duke" Schiller of Windsor, Ont., landed in Montana and the race was declared no contest.

Stinson arrived here in another plane after leaving his ship at Missoula, where he was forced down by engine trouble. The ship was to be repaired and brought here to-day.

"SICK" MOTOR

Stinson said he might have been able to have reached Spokane. Twice during the transcontinental flight, in company with Fred Koehler, his relief pilot, Stinson flew for several hours, nursing a "sick" motor. The second time he decided to turn back and landed at Missoula, Mont., rather than take the chance of being forced to come down in the mountains.

Air derby officials expected Schiller to fly in the monoplane Royal Windsor to Spokane to-day. Schiller dropped out of the race at Billings, Mont., because of low gas supply. Because planes making stops were disqualified under the rules, no prize will be awarded.

Spokane Sept. 23.—With the arrival yesterday morning of Frank M. Hawks of Houston, Texas, only one of the Class "A" national air derby flyers who had not dropped out had failed to arrive from New York at the Spokane airport. He was Tex Rankin of Portland, Ore. His arrived, expected to-day, cannot affect the result of the race, however.

C. W. Holman of St. Paul won first prize; E. E. Ballough of Chicago second; N. B. Mamer of Spokane third, and John P. Wood of Wausau, Wis., fourth. The winner of the fifth prize is not yet announced.

In the Class "B" national air derby all the contestants except M. H. McMechan of Yakima, had arrived or had dropped out of the race.

The unofficial winners in this race remained unchanged yesterday, with

VETERAN OF RIEL REBELLION PASSES

J. F. Forbes, South Vancouver, Escorted Revolutionist to Scaffold

Vancouver, Sept. 23.—One of the officers of the Northwest Mounted Police who were connected with the second Riel Rebellion, John French Forbes, South Vancouver, is dead here. He was one of two constables who escorted the revolutionist to the scaffold.

Mr. Forbes remained in the force until 1889, when he took his discharge in Fort Saskatchewan, where he later acted as Justice of the Peace. For a number of years he farmed in Alberta, and early in the century came to Vancouver, where he was, for a period, secretary of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. J. Langland and Mrs. D. Smalley, and one son, Walter, all resident in Vancouver.

MEN WORK TO SAVE SILK FROM FRASER

Boat Salvaging Bales Scattered Along River Bank

Vancouver, Sept. 23.—Wrecking crews of the Canadian Pacific Railway are continuing their efforts to salvage five cars loaded with raw silk which hurtled into the Fraser River Wednesday afternoon two miles east of Yale.

According to railway officials, the silk, valued at approximately $1,500,000, will not suffer from the immersion, as the water in the river at Yale is not affected by tidal conditions.

Some of the cars were smashed in the plunge down the Rocky slopes and the contents floated down the river. The Canadian Pacific Railway has dispatched a boat from Mission, sixty miles down the river to salvage bales of silk scattered along the river bank. Residents of Yale are reported to have retrieved a large quantity of the commodity, while one Indian woman "fished out" forty bales.

ONTARIO SEEKS TO STEM ADVANCES OF WESTERN LUMBER

Eastern Government Puts Ban on B.C. Products to Help Local Manufacturers

Progress of Pacific Wood Products Follows Pattullo's Campaign in East

Sales of British Columbia lumber, advanced through the efforts of the British Columbia Government, have made such inroads into Eastern Canada that the Government of Ontario is attempting to aid local manufacturers by insisting on the use of Ontario forest products in all Government contracts.

Announcement of the new Ontario policy, which was received at the Parliament Buildings to-day, was regarded as striking evidence of the progress of British Columbia in the eastern province. This progress has followed the efforts of Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, to popularize the forest products of this province with eastern buyers through the work of a lumber trade commissioner's office with headquarters in Toronto.

EASTERN DEALERS HIT

Competition from British Columbia has been a sore point with Ontario lumber dealers for some years and has been growing more serious from their point of view annually. Their protests to the Ontario Government have resulted at last in the new order specifying Ontario wood in all kinds of Government contracts. Announcement of the new Ontario policy by Premier Ferguson has been received with keen satisfaction by Ontario lumbermen, who at the same time paid a high tribute to the energy of the British Columbia authorities in pressing ahead the sale of British Columbia products.

B.C. EXHIBIT BEST

Alfred Clark, prominent Toronto lumberman, when asked by The Toronto Globe about the effect of the new lumber order, declared that in the past the Ontario Government had not fostered the lumber industry as much as it should have done.

"Take the exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition by the British Columbia Government," he said. "Every year it is the best at the fair. It shows that the Ontario Government is pretty lax when it allows another province to come in with a better exhibit each year."

BUSINESS INCREASES

How British Columbia lumber has been scoring in eastern markets was explained by Frank Kent, president of the big Seaman Kent lumber industries. "The Ontario pine dealers' market has been almost entirely wiped out of late," he said. "A few years ago about 250,000,000 feet of lumber was brought from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Coast, part of which came to Canada. At present about 1,250,000,000 feet is brought round by way of the Panama Canal.

This, he pointed out, not only has had the effect of invading the markets of Ontario and Quebec with Pacific Coast lumber but has swept away the logical market of these provinces in the New England States.

Ontario Realtors Propose Licenses

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Realtors of the Province of Ontario waited yesterday upon Attorney-General W. H. Price and urged the Government to adopt a draft bill which they presented to provide for the licensing of all real estate commission agents in the province. The aim of the law was declared to be the protection of the public from fraud and the real estate profession from "rogues." The Attorney-General said: "Something must be done along the line you mention."

James McLennan of Vancouver Passes

Vancouver, Sept. 23—James McLennan, sixty-seven, brother of the late R. P. McLennan, who died in this city recently, died this morning at the General Hospital following an illness of four days.

Vancouver, Sept. 23.—After two years as an instructor at Camp Borden, the central training station of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Flying Officer A. H. Hull has returned to Vancouver. He will assume command of the Jericho Beach station of the R.C.A.F. and Flying Officer W. D. Van Vliet, who has been in charge all Summer, will return to Camp Borden.

MACLEAN SEEKS PUBLIC VIEW OF TAXATION POLICY

B.C. Premier Touring Interior to Secure Electors' Opinion

Taxes Reduced at Rate of $2,500,000 Annually He Points Out

Fernie, B.C., Sept. 23.—Hon. J. D. MacLean, Premier of British Columbia, appeared before a Fernie audience here last night. Dr. MacLean stated he was glad to speak here at this time when there was no election on the political horizon. The Premier announced his present tour of the interior was for the purpose of inquiring into the Government's taxation policy to meet the electorate as was the duty of Ministers of the Crown, and also in a general manner to outline some of the future plans of the Government in its administration of the public affairs.

SINKING FUNDS

The late Premier Oliver was eulogized by his successor. The financial status of the Province was reviewed from prior to the advent of the Liberal Government. The Premier characterized that situation as one verging on collapse and the credit shattered. The Liberal regime in order to improve the finances, adopted a more rigid principle of providing more satisfactory sinking fund requirements. The expenditure of $20,000,000 annually was justified by the Premier on the basis of the Province's comparatively sparse population of about 600,000 people. The added disbursements were also due to the greatly diminished purchasing power of the dollar.

The provision of the public buildings in the form of health and other worthy institutions utilized funds of substantial proportions. Education cost British Columbia $3,500,000 which proportionately was no greater than that in the prairie provinces or Ontario.

DECREE GRANTED CHINESE WOMAN

First Divorce Application in Local Courts Between Chinese Principals

What is believed to be the first application for divorce between Chinese principals to be heard in British Columbia courts, was made before Mr. Justice Morrison in the Supreme Court here this morning, when Tey Dak, a bride of one year, secured a decree absolute from Lee Wee on the ground of infidelity.

The petitioner, represented by Frank Higgins, K.C., in an undefended action, told of her marriage to Lee Wee in September, 1926, at Vancouver, in a romance that was shattered within three weeks' time.

May Yock was cited as co-respondent.

Western ideas on divorce are as yet little known in China, though provision for legal divorce under the Chinese code has existed for a decade.

JUDGE QUASHES COLLECTION OF $1,000,000 IN B.C.

Fisheries Department Proposes to Carry Question of Licenses to Supreme Court of Canada and Judicial Committee of Privy Council

Vancouver, Sept. 23—By judgment of Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald in Supreme Cocrt, Section 7-A of the Fisheries Act, as enacted by the Dominion Parliament is declared ultra vires. Federal government annual revenue of nearly $1,000,000, collected heretofore for fish cannery licenses and including tax per case on salmon is affected.

His lordship thus sustains a decision of Magistrate H. O. Alexander in district police court, who acquitted the Somerville Cannery Company Limited, of an infraction of the act when it operated a clam cannery March 25, last at Prince Rupert without first obtaining an annual license from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

NO APPEAL

From Mr. Justice Macdonald's judgment there is no appeal. In view of the important constitutional point involved and the revenue thus lost to the Dominion, the Fisheries Department proposes to refer the question to the supreme court of Canada for opinion. The judicial committee of the Privy Council may later be called upon to decide the issue in another proceeding, whereby the same company is suing several Dominion fishery officials for damages.

The cannery had a provincial license on March 25.

SAYS POWERS EXCEEDED

Briefly, Mr. Justice Macdonald found that Parliament exceeded its powers under the British North America Act and attempted to legislate on a matter of civil rights which comes within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Province. The matter was heard in Supreme Court on a case stated by Magistrate Alexander. A. B. Macdonald, K.C., was counsel for the Federal Government, and W. E. Williams for the respondent company.

Section 7—A of the Fisheries Act provides that no one should operate a fish cannery for commercial purposes without first obtaining an annual license, for which, if no other fee were provided in the act, the annual fee should be one dollar. Although enacted in 1917, the right of the Dominion to license fish canneries has been exercised for nearly sixty years, under similar legislation, and was never questioned before. Supplementary legislation increased the fee to twenty dollars, and in addition, the licensee was required to pay four cents for each case of sockeye salmon and three cents for each case of any other species of salmon canned in the country This enactment is Section 18 of the Fisheries Act.

ANNOUNCES GERMAN AGREEMENT TO MOVE FOR PEACE

Geneva, Sept. 23.—Germany's signature has been affixed to the compulsory arbitration clause of the Permanent Court of International Justice, Foreign Minister Stresemann announced to-day.

Logger Still in Grave Condition

Samuel Wagget, young logger from the Cathels & Sorenson Port Renfrew base camp, has been unconscious in hospital here for approximately 72 hours, following an accident at the loading station where he was employed. He was hurt last Tuesday morning, when he received a fracture at the base of the skull. Rushed here by a relay of launches, he was finally lodged at the Jubilee Hospital and has been there ever since. Three whole days after the accident the man is still unconscious.

Bandits Stage Mail Robbery in Quebec

Chicoutimi, Que., Sept. 23.—A mail robbery was staged at Dolbean Wednesday, it was reported here to-day. The estimated amount of the loss has not been announced, but it is not believed to be great.

KAMLOOPS MAN MAY BE HUNTER'S VICTIM

Found Dead Near Vedder River Dyke With Bullet Wound

Chilliwack, Sept. 23.—Michael Doyle, aged about forty-five, and believed to have come from Kamloops, was found on Wednesday with a bullet through his head, near the Vedder River dyke, about five miles from here. The discovery was made by Mr. and Mrs. W. McGillivray, nearby residents, as they were walking along the dyke.

Chief Constable Harding and Coroner D. E. Henderson, were notified, and the body was brought to the city. The bullet entered the back of the head, but no firearms were found on or near the body.

Police believe that the man was killed by a hunter, many of whom have been shooting in the vicinity of the Vedder River since the season opened on September 15. The position of the body indicated, they think, that some sportsman, seeing a moving object near the dyke, shot at it from the top of the embankment and then, possibly believing that he had missed, not bothered to go to the scene.

An inquest is being held.

No Politics Enter Bilingual Report of Ontario Schools

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Premier Ferguson last night opposes the idea of political significance attached to the report of the bilingual schools inquiry committee, claiming that he was more concerned with providing the best possible educational opportunities for the children of the province than in any political advantage or disadvantage that some people might seek to attribute to the suggestions of the committee.

"As far as I can gather," stated Mr. Ferguson, "the report has been received favorably by the people as an earnest effort to approach a sympathetic manner a difficult problem."

NEW BUILDING ON COURTNEY STREET

Brick and Concrete Structure For J. S. Matson to Cost $11,000

Former Plimley Garage May Be Used as Central Bus Depot

Construction of a brick and concrete building for J. S. H. Matson has been commenced on Courtney Street by Luney Bros. Limited, which firm was awarded the contract at a figure of approximately $11,000. It will occupy the site of a livery barn erected about forty years ago and which was recently torn down to make way for the new structure.

The new building, which will be one story high, will be connected with the former Plimley garage on Broughton Street by a reinforced concrete ramp leading from the Courtney Street entrance.

Architect Ralph Berrill is the designer of the new building.

With the transfer of the Thomas Plimley Limited agency to its new location at the intersection of Yates and Vancouver Streets last month, the garage building at the corner of Broughton and Gordon Streets became vacant and steps were at once taken to remodel the property for other purposes.

It is understood that the Broughton Street building may be utilized, after extensive remodeling has been completed, as a central depot for busses operating to points outside the city.

GERMAN-U.S. AMBASSADOR ONE OF SIX KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN SAXONY

Berlin, Sept. 23.—Baron Ago von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States, was one of six persons killed to-day when a Lufthansa plane in which he was traveling from Berlin to Munich to meet his wife and daughter, crashed outside of Heinrichsruhe, seven miles from Schleiz, in Thuringia. The only witness to the accident said that it occurred when a wing crumpled and the plane crashed.

The others killed were Pilot Charlett, an official of the German Federal Railways, a pupils of the Staaken School of Pilots, a traffic man of the Lufthansa, and an unidentified engineer.

That the wings of the plane crumpled is regarded as inconceivable in air circles here as the machine had been inspected prior to its departure by Mechanic Feller, who certified that the machine was in order.

EXPERIENCED PILOT

The theory has been expressed that the accident may have been due to malicious interference by a third party. Lufthansa officials point out that Charett has been a pilot since 1912 and flown 260,000 kilometres for the company without a mishap.

As the accident occurred in a district where there are no mountains, the officials are quite mystified at a mishap to an aeroplane which has been in service since May.

Baron Ago von Maltzan was good-naturedly nicknamed by the German people "The Red Baron" because for years he had been under secretary of state in the German foreign office in charge of the eastern department—and that meant Russia. It was his job to study the vast changes that were going forward in the realms of the soviet and his knowledge of communism was at once keen and penetrating.

Baron von Maltzan was fifty years of age and a native of Mecklenburg. Choosing a military career, the baron, after his graduation from the University of Bonn and Breslau, became a lieutenant of dragoons. The lure of diplomatic life, however, soon caused him to shift from the military and he entered the foreign office as an attache in 1906.

FINE SINGERS AND DANCERS IN COMEDY

Best Talent in City Helping Gyros Put on "The Red Widow" Next Week

Some of the finest singing and most beautiful dancing seen here for a long time will be presented for the admiration of theatregoers when the Gyro Club stages its musical comedy, "The Red Widow," at the Royal Victoria Theatre on September 29 and 30 and October 1.

The chorus work is outstanding. The Gyros have assembled a cast of good singers and the choruses are put over in style.

The solos and duets are extremely delightful and Mrs. Lily Wilson, Frank Tupman, Fred Francis, Isobel Crawford, Marjorie Watson, Arnold Trevitt, G. S. Fern, a number of them gold medalists in recent musical festivals, star in their respective parts.

"I am certainly pleased to think that I am able to get such first-class amateur talent for a show," declared C. H. Lewis, the producer, after last night's rehearsal. "I have put on shows all over this continent and I can conscientiously say that I have never been so fortunate in getting such outstanding stars. The chorus work, which so often is weak in musical comedies, is really fine in 'The Red Widow.'"

"The Red Widow" is from the book written by Channing Pollock. The music is by Charles J. Gilbert and the lyrics by Harold Orlob. These same writers put together "The Beauty Shop," which was staged here two years ago and proved such a wonderful success.

The Gyro Club is producing the show and tickets are now on sale. The box office at the Royal Victoria Theatre will open on Tuesday next.

LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB

To the Editor:—There appeared in the editorial page of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer of September 14 an editorial that in its context is so illuminating, so appropriate to the work in which our Ladies' Musical Club is interested that I have ventured to give a condensed version of the article, but the latter part of it will be quoted in full. The editor draws a comparison between the "rippling cadenza of the brook and the silvery note of the flute: From lilting Aeolus in the firs to plaintive oboe" and continues the comparison to include most of the instruments in a symphony orchestra. "Nature, in the Northwest," he says, "is a wily old competitor of man. Here he has given a symphonic setting to a virile race. In Summer he beguiles us in the out-of-doors. But music, after all, is a part of nature—a most important part—and the translation from the harmonies of lake and stream and mountain and sea to those of the concert hall is not difficult—provided man's efforts are characterized by appealing artistry."

In Victoria we have a number of organizations, each working in its own way to help build up the reputation of this city as a music-loving place. In addition we have the Ladies' Musical Club, which has, for many years, brought the attention of Victoria to the young people who showed unusual talent, and has encouraged them in their efforts. In addition, the club brings well-known, and often world-known, artists to Victoria, "and to many this means a Winter of exquisite pleasure"—to go back to the Seattle paper. "To all it gives the profit which comes to a community which strives to build up appreciation of the better things of life." Mr. James D. Hoge, banker and president of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra, said recently: "I think the cultural, musical development of a city is as essential to its growth as civic and business progress. Business is better, professional and business men keep up to par when there is a background of culture in the city. And culture means the best in music and art for everyone in the city, not just for a few." This opinion is especially valuable because it comes from one who has made an outstanding success in business. The plea for music "for everyone in the city, not just for a few" could be so easily gratified in this city of Victoria if all the substantial business and professional men could see through the eyes of a man like Mr. Hoge. The Ladies' Musical Club, for example, would be enabled to have seats sold in the Royal Victoria at a price which would allow young students to attend at a price well within their means. As it is, with no definite assurance of a good house for any particular concert, it is not possible to make the prices any lower than they are. For example, in its advertising the club is not allowed to use windows in vacant stores for posters, and in many cases we are not encouraged to leave window cards. It seems to be a lack of appreciation of the facts in the case: That the work is done by members of the club who do it for the love of the cause, and that there can be no better advertisement for Victoria than the publicity given by those who attract a large audience, and who go away feeling they have made a success in an artistic sense. They receive their fees in any case, but it certainly makes for a better feeling, which reacts in no uncertain way for the good of Victoria, when they have a good audience. We should sell 750 season tickets to cover the concerts to be given this year. At the present time we have disposed of little more than half that number. The single tickets will bring the amount to considerably more, but if we could dispose of the full number of season tickets, we could easily put a large number of tickets at a very low figure, and thereby meet Mr. Hoge's suggestion of music "for everyone in the city, and not just for a few."

Blackmailer Lands In Toils of Police

London, Ont., Sept. 23.—An alleged attempt at blackmail was thwarted last night when a man giving the name of Clement McIsaac was arrested near the farm of James Legg, just north of the city.

A few days ago Legg received a letter signed with a skull and crossbones, but without a name in which a request was made that $250 in $10 bills, tied in one package be placed last night in a mail box close to the Legg home. Legg was warned that he would be watched and that he would be killed if he did not comply with the request, or if he notified the police.

Last night Constable Wharton disguised himself as Legg and placed the package in the letter box.

A man emerged from the bush and strolled up to the mail box. He got the package and was immediately surrounded by police. He surrendered without resistance.

CANADA POSSESSES ONLY HELIUM IN BRITISH EMPIRE

Mining Savants at Edmonton Discuss Problem of Future Oil Supply

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 23 (Canadian Press)—That Canada possesses the only source of helium in the British Empire was the statement made in a paper on "Natural Gas in Canada," by R. T. Elworthy of the mines branch, Department of Mines, at the meeting of the Empire Mining and Metallurgical Congress here.

The helium is present to the extent of 0.8 per cent in the natural gas of the Inglewood field, near Brampton, Ontario, which is just as rich in this constituent as is the natural gas from which helium is recovered in the U.S. Government plant at Fort Worth, Texas. Helium is the next lightest gas to hydrogen, over which it has the great advantage of being non-inflammable so that it has obvious possibilities for use in any future airship service. Unfortunately the Inglewood gas field, as at present known, is relatively small, but the Ontario Government has taken up many of the leases in the area and it is hoped that an experimental extraction station will be established before long.

OUTPUT DECLINING

It was brought out in the paper that the output from natural gas wells in Ontario is declining. On the other hand in Alberta, owing to the great activity in drilling for oil during the past five years, particularly in the Turner Valley field, southwest of Calgary, and in the Wainwright field, east of Edmonton, enormous flows of natural gas have been opened up, presenting the problem of how this vast supply can be utilized to the greatest advantage.

This paper was one of a series which together formed a very comprehensive and authoritative review of the petroleum and natural gas situation in Canada, and of prospects for the future. Each paper had been prepared for presentation before the Empire Congress by a specialist in the particular field dealt with, and they included "Oil and Gas in the Martime Provinces," by W. A. Bell of the Geological Survey; "Oil and Gas Fields of Ontario," by R. B. Harkness, natural gas commissioner for the Province of Ontario; three papers by G. S. Hume of the Geological Survey, dealing with the oil and gas prospects of the Great Plains of British Columbia and of the Mackenzie River area; "Bituminous Sands of Northern Alberta," by S. C. Ells, mines branch, Department of Mines, and a statistical review, by S. J. Cook, Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

FROM WELLS IN CANADA

Available records show that between 1861 and 1926 a total of 22,600,000 barrels, or 791,000,000 Imperial gallons, of oil have been taken from wells in Canada, representing a value, as crude petroleum, of about $35,000,000. Although at first glance these figures look formidable, they at once dwindle to almost microscopic proportions when placed side by side with our imports of petroleum, asphalt and their products, which, for the single year 1925 had a value of $38,105,478, and probably exceeded that total in 1926. This, of course, is a situation that can be remedied only by the bringing in of domestic oil wells. Millions of dollars have been, and are being, expended with this object in view.

In addition to the Turner Valley and other producing oil fields in Alberta, that province has a possible source of liquid hydrocarbons in the enormous deposits of bituminous sand in the McMurray district. Outcrops, representing a practically continuous deposit, of this material extend along the Athabaska River and its tributaries for a total distance of more than 260 miles. These sands have been the object of a considerable amount of research in recent years, and it may be said that, as a mechanical problem, the recovery from them, by distillation or otherwise, of petroleum and other hydrocarbons is entirely feasible; commercially, however, it would not be profitable in competition with well petroleum at its present price.

SINCE EARLY SIXTIES

The gas and oil fields of Ontario are in the extreme southwestern part of the province adjacent to Lakes Erie and Huron. There have been producing oil wells in these districts since the early sixties, but the yield of oil, and also of gas, has been steadily declining in recent years. In New Brunswick production comes from wells near Moncton. There are seventy wells in the field, thirty of which yield oil as well as gass.

The larger question of the petroleum resources and refining facilities of the Empire was dealt with in a series of very informative papers by Sir Thomas Holland, Sir Frederick Black and Messrs. E. H. Cunningham-Craig and J. H Sanders, all members of the Institute of Petroleum Technologists (London).

It was shown that the British Empire is far from self-supporting in the matter of petroleum output. The Empire consumes annually between 10,000,000 and 11,000,000 tons of petroleum, and produces only about 3,000,000 tons. Moreover, the total refining capacity of the Empire is only sufficient to handle 7,0000,000 or 8,000,000 tons per year. The importance of making a complete survey of all possible sources of petroleum, including oil-shales and bituminous sands, within the Empire is thus obvious. Oil is today the main motive power that keeps the navy moving on the seven seas, and it is important also to remember that, in case of any temporary isolation, even the Empire sources of crude oil might not be accessible to Great Britain, the principal consuming centre.

Other papers presented at the Edmonton meeting included a comprehensive survey of the coal mining industry in the western provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, prepared respectively by Robert Strachan, W. J. Dick and R. J. Le; and a paper by A. E. Cameron and J. F. Morrison on "Impact Resistance of Steels at Low Temperatures."

GETS A FULL PAY CHECK SINCE HE TURNED TO HUSKY

Johnson Street Man Used to Have to "Lay Off" Half the Time, As Indigestion, Constipation and Dizzy Spells Afflicted Him So

Men that depend upon their daily toil to keep the wolf from the door perhaps realize the importance of good health more than any other group, and they fully appreciate the wonderful health building qualities of Husky, the herb preparation, distributed by the MacFarlane Drug Co.

These men know that a day lost from their work means cutting down the grocery and meat bill. This not only works a hardship upon the man, but his whole family must suffer. Nourishing the body with good, wholesome food is essential to withstand the trying work that is done day by day. Carpenters are generally as hard workers as can be found, and it is necessary that their stomach be in good condition to receive the food so that the proper assimilation takes place, which in turn gives strength to the entire body.

Mr. C. B. Sole, 1052 Johnson Street, is a Victoria carpenter, whose stomach was not in condition to receive food, therefore he gradually ran down and was in pretty bad shape when he started the use of Husky. He is now keeping fit with Husky, however, and in order that other men and women might benefit from his experience he has made the following statement in regard to his case:

C. B. SOLE

"For quite a while I felt so sick that I could hardly work and about half the time I would have to lay off my job. I was suffering from indigestion and constipation, and anyone who is afflicted with these troubles knows what they will do for a man when they hang on for a long time. I was having dizzy spells all the time, was feeling weak and couldn't get help from anything. I was losing weight and had become worried about myself

"I heard so many people talking about Husky that I decided to try it and it has done just what it was claimed that it woul do. It has relieved my indigestion and put my stomach in splendid shape. Husky has regulated my bowels in a normal way and those dizzy spells and weak feelings have disappeared. I am back on the job and putting in full time. I have gained 15 pounds since I've been using this medicine and I tell you I am feeling like a new man. I want to tell everyone that Husky is the best ever."

CALL AT MACFARLANE DRUG CO.

The Husky expert is making his headquarters at the MacFarlane Drug Co., exclusive distributors of Husky, where he is explaining about this medicine and how the best results are obtained from its use. Call on him to-day.

RUSSIA FAILS TO SATISFY FRANCE ON DEBT SETTLEMENT

Early Report of Agreement Denied in Paris Dispatch

Moscow, Russia, Sept. 23.—A full agreement has been reached on the debt question between the Soviet and French delegations studying the question, M. Litvinoff, chief of the Soviet legations abroad, declared to-day. Interviewed by the Soviet news agency, Tass, on doubts expressed in French newspapers as to whether an agreement had been reached between delegates, M. Litvinoff said:

"I emphatically affirm and authorize you publicly to report that between the Soviet and French delegations a full agreement has been reached on the debt.

"All doubts will soon be set at rest when the French public will learn that the Soviet Government is ready within the next six months to deposit in an agreed bank the first half-yearly installment of thirty million gold francs from the first payments can be made to the French holders of Russian securities immediately after.

Paris, Sept. 22—The statement of Maxim Litvinoff, in Moscow, that the French and Soviet delegations were in complete agreement on the debt question and soon would be on credits was described as far from the facts in official sources late to-day.

This general assertion of the alleged inaccuracy of Litvinoff's statement will be followed shortly, it was stated, by detailed information from the French delegation to put the affair in the true light.

No Nomination Made By Creston Liberals

Nelson, Sept. 23.—The Liberal nominating convention of Creston Riding held to-night in Nelson, adjourned without taking steps to nominate a Liberal to contest the riding at the next general election against Lieut.-Colonel Fred Lister. An earlier nominating convention that met last June similarly ended without action.

It is now the intention to have the Creston nomination after the Nelson Liberals nominate for the coming by-election.

CAPITAL IMPAIRED IN GREAT WEST LOAN, COURT IS INFORMED

Winnipeg, Sept. 23.—The special report on affairs of the Great West Permanent Loan Company, pursuant to order of the late Chief Justice Mathers, was filed in evidence to-day in the current litigation in which the company is involved and it alleges substantial impairment of the capital of the company.

It will go on court records in connection with the petition for a winding up order by George Adams, a shareholder of the company. The petition was filed early in the year and its hearing and the interlocutory applications incident to it have already been on court lists twenty-four times.

Reception of the report by the court brought vigorous objection from counsel representing the company. A. E. Hoskins, K.C., senior counsel, claimed its contents were far beyond what was contemplated under the statute pursuant to which it was ordered and insofar as it was beyond statutory limitations it was inadmissible in connection with the hearing of the petition.

Mr. Justice Dysart, on application of counsel, reserved their right to argue objections to the whole or any part of the report as to its being inadmissible.

"The net result, in my view," the report says, "is an impairment of the shareholders' capital considerably in excess of seventy per cent, the loss of capital amounting to $1,847,745."

There also has disappeared the additional sum put in by shareholders of not less than $416,940, and if we consider the total funds which the company as its best showing in years past is presumed to have had, the total loss in the interval is represented by a still larger figure.

The cost of living in England is lower than a year ago.

POLITICS IN THE SYNOD

IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT THE CRITICisms of the Dominion Government's immigration policy which emanated from a number of the delegates to the general synod of the Anglican Church at Kingston were based on inaccurate information; but it is just as well that Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, has taken note of them and replied in a detailed statement.

One charge made in the synod by a Colonel Gilbert Saunders, a police magistrate of Calgary, ought not to be allowed to go without further notice. He declared that 48,000 Hungarians had been brought to Canada recently on a promise that they were to receive twenty-five dollars weekly as soon as they arrived here; but the jobs had not materialized. As he put it, "they were lied to before they came, and they were cheated after they got here, and now they are making fine recruits for Communism."

Mr. Forke answers this charge by quoting facts from the official records of the Department of Immigration. These show that in the sixteen months from April 1, 1926, to July 31, 1927, the number of Hungarians entering Canada did not exceed 8,761. The Minister, of course, suggests that if these people had been promised a wage at all, twenty-five dollars would have been the monthly pay. It is obvious that if it had been possible to promise twenty-five dollars a week to all comers, it would not have been necessary to go to Hungary to get them. But if Colonel Saunders desires to be fair, and to forget politics for a moment, he will acknowledge his mistake, for he ought to know that there is precious little opportunity of smuggling 48,000 people into this Dominion without the Department of Immigration knowing all about it.

The statement of the Calgary magistrate is grotesque enough in itself; but he made it moreso by declaring to his ecclesiastical audience that the newspapers of the West had refused to say anything about the Hungarian influx. He should have known, however, that his "information" would have made a tasty morsel for The Calgary Herald, a strong supporter of the Conservative cause; but if he had mentioned the matter to the editor of that journal, of course, he would have been told that he was a little off on his facts.

Incidentally, however, the synod is not an appropriate place for disappointed job hunters or rabid partizans to air their grievances or try to make capital against an administration to which they are opposed politically.

THE EFFECT OF POWER

ALTHOUGH HE HAS BUT A SLENDER majority in the Dail Eireann, it is practically certain that President Cosgrave will consent to form a new government in the Irish Free State. If he should not feel so disposed, it is equally certain that Mr. de Valera will be asked to undertake the task, in which case the Republican leader will at once accept. In the meantime both leaders have been invited to a conference for the purpose of discussing the economic position of the country and the question of conciliation and unity.

Mr. de Valera loses no opportunity of denouncing the Anglo-Irish Treaty and of declaring that his opposition to Great Britain and everything British will not cease until all Ireland is completely independent. But that is the view of Mr. de Valera as the leader of the strongest Opposition party in the Dail. Is it not possible that Mr. de Valera as President of the Irish Free State under the existing constitution would have a different conception of his duties? Many people in Great Britain fairly shuddered at the idea of a government presided over by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald; but his term of office was notable for the lack of anything in the nature of radical legislation. He may argue indeed with every justification that one of the best post-war budgets was brought down by Mr. Snowden during his regime. Not one act of his was half as radical as the coal subsidy voted by the succeeding Conservative Government. If the Labor Administration had been guilty of that policy, it would have been charged with robbing the public treasury in the most heartless manner.

There also were grave misgivings about South Africa under a government presided over by General Hertzog. He was a staunch separationist and only dropped the republican plank from the Nationalist Party platform in order to negotiate a fusion with Labor and so defeat the Government of Premier Smuts. Yet General Hertzog went to the Imperial Conference and returned to South Africa firm in the belief that the Union would be much better off as a self-governing partner in the Britannic Commonwealth than if it went its own way. He lost no time in assuring the South African people that he had finished with his old doctrines. Power wrought much of his change of outlook.

So if Mr. de Valera eventually should be called upon to form a government in the Irish Free State, it is not unreasonable to expect that his outlook, too, will be changed by his sense of responsibility. It may be that the prophecy which Ulster's Premier made when he was Sir James Craig yet will come true. "The day will come," said he, "when Irishmen will settle all their differences in their own country and in their own way."

GREYHOUND RACING

GREYHOUND RACING IN GREAT Britain is causing many people to suggest that it is merely another excuse for gambling. The Church, horse racing interests, and the movies are viewing it with considerable alarm. They note the dozens of applications that are being made to the administrative councils of nearly all the big cities to lease land on which to build tracks, the Wembley Stadium, built at a cost of $3,500,000 already having passed into the hands of a limited company of which Major-General Seely, who commanded the Canadian Cavalry Corps in the Great War, is a director.

It is interesting to note that this new sport in which, it will be understood, an electrical hare is the quarry, was introduced into Great Britain from the United States. The first racing track was opened in Manchester a little more than a year ago, and the second at the White City in London was only started last June. Meetings at the White City are held three days a week, and it is said that nearly a million and a half people have passed the turnstiles there. The racing begins in the evening when the day's work is over, and it is a cheap entertainment, providing no betting losses are incurred. As with horse-racing, there is a good deal of betting on the dogs, and it is no doubt the hope of "making a bit" which attracts many in the vast crowds that attend the meetings.

It is not unusual on a favorable night for 100,000 people to be present at the greyhound racing at the White City. Round the arena, which is about 500 yards across, is a prepared track along which the electric hare travels under the control of an observer stationed in a tower, who keeps the hare just in front of the dogs. At the end the hare disappears underground, and the winning dog is the one that first passes a fixed point. The dogs are not allowed to discover that the quarry is a sham, but a few have shown signs of tiring of vain pursuits after an unreality, and one or two of the more discriminating ones have discovered that it is less trouble to take the opposite route round the track and catch the hare as it comes along.

It should be noted that while it is an easy matter to lay down a track it takes eighteen months or two years to grow a racing dog, and there are not half the greyhounds in the country to provide programmes for all the courses already planned. The White City alone requires two hundred to maintain full programmes, and the total number of registered greyhounds for real coursing is little more than 2,000. The new sport has, of course, given an immense impetus to greyhound breeding. Even the "discards," which formerly could hardly be given away, are now worth large sums, and for the next year or two there will be great difficulty in obtaining enough racing dogs if all the projected tracks are to be kept in full operation.

A FINE RECORD

THE DERAILMENT OF A NUMBER OF baggage cars of the silk train near Yale this week obviously is a serious matter; but the accident itself has drawn attention to the remarkable fact that ever since the movement of silk out of Vancouver began something like twenty years ago, this is the first occasion on which a delay of this sort has occurred.

This is a remarkable record, because when silk is unloaded at this coast it is necessary to get it across the country as rapidly as possible, and this the railway companies have done at all seasons of the year with outstanding success.

JOTS FROM GEOGRAPHY

THE OLDEST APOTHECARY SHOP in America, has finally closed its doors to the public. It is located at Fredericksburg, Virginia. In this ancient building Mary Washington purchased castor oil for little George Washington when he suffered from eating too many green apples. The Washingtons lived near the drug store.

UP-ISLAND ON MOVE, CHRISTY ASCERTAINS

Coal Distillation to Bring Coal Districts Back, He Says

The trend up the Island has changed and after the last few quiet years, business and development everywhere are on the up-grade, according to R. G. Christy, head of R. G. Christy & Co., who returned to Victoria to-day after making a personal business survey of up-Island conditions.

"Up above Comox there is much activity as a result of the entry at Campbell River of the Crown Willamette Pulp and Paper Company and the $3,000,000 they are starting to spend on their development," Mr. Christy said.

"The whole coal mining area up the Island, which has been hard hit by fuel oil competition during recent years, is about to take a new lease of life as a result of the distillation processes by which gasoline and other oils are made out of coal. Island coal is peculiarly suited for reduction methods. As start on this oil production from coal is to be made in the Comox Valley. It will bring the whole area back to abounding prosperity.

"The opening of the smelter at Ladysmith is bringing new life to that district.

"In the Alberni district the lumber business is booming, all mills are working full time and everybody is busy."

MALAHAT BOARD OF TRADE WANTS ROADS

Dangers on Shawnigan Lake District Highways Indicated; Much Business Undertaken

Shawnigan Lake, Sept. 23.—The monthly meeting of the Malahat Board of Trade was held in the S.L.A.A. Hall on Wednesday evening, G. A. Cheeke, president, in the chair. There was a good attendance of members. The board had for its first speaker C. B. Sippy of London, England, who is making a tour of the British possessions in the interest of trade and commerce within the Empire. The meeting was faced with a considerable amount of business, having to do mainly with roads.

Prior to dealing with other matters, P. J. Heald, the board delegate to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce convention held in Vancouver last week, gave a report of the deliberations of that body. The work accomplished at the convention would have a far-reaching effect on the future prosperity of Canada, he said. East has met West and both have found common ground for united effort in solving the problems facing the nation.

One thing the convention recommended was the value of the small boards such as the Malahat Board, which function in sparsely populated and unorganized districts, and a resolution was passed urging the formation of more of these boards throughout the West.

The public works committee reported a number of urgent road improvements. The Government will be asked for the following A foot-path alongside the Island Highway between the Mill Bay Bridge and the ferry landing, owing to the danger to pedestrians on account of narrowness of the road and large amount of traffic; improvement of the West Arm Road from the outlet of Shawnigan Lake for a distance of one and a half miles. Traffic over that portion is heavy owing to C. W. Lonsdale's School and the erection of a new hotel. The road is possitively dangerous to the number of children using it. Another short piece of road urgently needed is from the post office and store in a southerly direction, distance of about 350 yards.

At present the railway track is the only way eleven families have to reach their homes and employees of the mill to reach their work. The C.P.R. has written the board asking for its co-operation in getting this road opened up, as they will have to prohibit walking on the track. The board passed resolutions favoring the above improvements and instructed the secretary to forward them to the Public Works Department.

The agricultural committee reported that the authorities had taken action regarding the Canada thistle menace and large areas of this weed had been cut and burnt.

The fish and game committee reported that the opening of the hunting season found game reasonably plentiful and that the restocking of the lake with trout fry was beginning to show favorable results.

At the close of the business session supper was served and a pleasant social hour spent. The following attended the meeting: Captain A. D. Levien, C. W. Lonsdale, G. A. Cheeke, E. G. West, H. A. Morley, James Christison, S. R. Yates, Colonel Eardley Wilmot, Colonel F. T. Oldham, S. J. Heald, B. R. Lovell, S. R. Finley, N. Alexander, W. Mudge, F. Hartley, J. C. Rathbone, L. J. Whitaker and C. B. Sippy, London, England.

BOB ROGERS BARS QUERIES ON COMING TORY POW-WOW

Convention Over in Three Days, Says White-haired Prophet

Many Resolutions Coming up Besides Selection of a Leader

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Hon. Rob Rogers in town, while as genial as ever, is as impeccably reticent as ever with respect to the Winnipeg convention's secrets. He, as usual, demonstrated his ability to send an interviewer away happy and pleased with nothing.

"How is the leadership race going?" asked the reporters. "Is Mr. Bennett really an odds on favorite?"

"Time will tell," quoth Mr. Rogers eagerly and safely: "It will be a fair and a square democratic convention and the best man will win."

Once more Mr. Rogers was the world's best example of genius to avoid indiscretions. "What do you think?" he was asked, "of the news that Mr. Meighen is going to attend the convention? Is there any significance in that?

"We are glad to have him there," answered Mr. Rogers. "We want everyone there."

"Does the fact that Mr. Ferguson is going to speak mean that if the convention winds blow his way he will no longer say, 'I do not choose'."

"The convention is going to be a big success," said Mr. Rogers. "That pleases me, for I said from the beginning that it would be a big success. We are going to have every one from all over the country. The best brains of the Conservative party will be there."

"It is said," a reporter remarked "that Dr. Edwards of Frontenac is going to try to make the return of the natural resources to the Western Province one of the big planks in the platform. Will that help Mr. Guthrie in his 'Woo the west' appeal?"

"There is going to be a big delegation from Quebec," Was Mr. Rogers's reply.

"How would that delegation vote? Would it go solidly for Mr. Cahan? Would it agree with St. James Street and support Mr. Bennett? Would it by any chance vote en bloc for Mr. Robert Rogers?

"I was born in Quebec," said the Honorable Bob with his enigmatic smile.

"But do you know," he went on "that for eight out of the last sixteen years I have been a resident of Ontario. Mr. Hanna evidently considers me a good Ontarian. I have one of his licences. And I also have my Summer home on the Lake of the Woods in Ontario."

The interviewer reverted to the subject of Quebec. "Will not Quebec be a big factor if its sixty-five constituencies are all represented?"

"Quebec," said Mr. Rogers, "will have its relative importance as compared with Ontaria, sixty-five to eighty-two."

"Is that fair?" he was asked. "Is it right that the votes of Quebec should swamp the votes of the loyal Conservative city of Toronto. Many people here have complained on that point. Would it not be a scandal if it were really Quebec that selected the leader?"

"This is a national convention," was Mr. Rogers's reply. "People are getting together from all over Canada. That's right and that's the real idea of the convention."

One might gather from Mr. Rogers's atmosphere of nation-wide harmony, that the policy he would support be one of wooing the West, wooing Ontario, wooing Quebec and wooing the Maritimes. He himself is well fitted to be a dove of peace in all sections, for he has good friends everywhere.

"How long will the convention last," he was asked.

"Three days," said he. "The Liberals got through in two. We ought to be able easily to get through in three. There are, after all, only two things of importance. The choice of a leader and the discussion of a platform."

"Then there will be a platform?"

"There will be all kinds of resolutions," said Mr. Rogers. "There always are at conventions. That's what conventions are for."

Dr. Edwards might air his views on the return of the western resources. Others might want something done in the matter of a higher tariff. All this was eminently fitting, but Mr. Rogers would not say what platform would be adopted or what platform should be adopted.

He did, however, give one reaction to the widespread publicity given to the question of leadership. "The press," said he, "has treated everyone very nicely. All the prospective candidates have had a fair show. They have been put fairly before the public and no one can complain that his case has been prejudiced."

Certainly it could not be said that Mr. Rogers had ever said anything to injure a rival to the Conservative throne. It was the fourth time that the interviewer in the last few months had queried Mr. Rogers about the leadership. Not once had he in popular parlance "knocked" a candidate On the contrary, he had high praise for every candidate. Never did he announce his own candidature.

And yet one leaves Mr. Rogers with the distinct feeling that he is decidedly in the running and that the great convention secret which he keeps religiously to himself is a knowledge of the personal good will which his amiable voyages up and down Canada have produced.

Still as far as public handshaking went Mr. Meighen yesterday looked more of a candidate than did Mr. Rogers. While that man of all the provinces remained discreetly in the room, Mr. Meighen was seen holding a little court in the rotunda of the King Edward. The late Conservative leader shook hands with great cordiality and seemed in as high spirits as a war-horse scenting battle.

OAK BAY APPOINTS PARLEY DELEGATES

Councillors Money and Goodlake, and Clerk R. F. Blandy to Attend Nanaimo Meeting

Oak Bay Council last night appointed delegates to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities Convention which will be held at Nanaimo on October 18 and 19. Councillors C. F. L. Money and T. J. Goodlake and municipal clerk R. E. Blandy will represent Oak Bay at the parley.

Mr. Blandy last night laid several suggestions for proposed amendments to municipal legislation before the council, including alterations to the Municipal Act, the Municipal Elections Act, the Hospital Act, the Town-planning Act and municipal finance.

Offers to purchase properties put up at the recent tax sale were received by the council last night but in most cases offers were much below the assessed value of the land, and the council decided to set the assessed price as the lowest price acceptable for these lots.

SIGN BY-LAW PASSED

The Oak Bay sign by-law, which has been under discussion for some time, was given final reading last night. This by-law aims at the preservation of the municipality as a residential district, prohibts large billboards on vacant lots and certain buildings and restricts the size of advertising signs.

Real estate signs must not exceed one and one-half feet square while signs on the sides of buildings may not exceed thirty-six square feet in area, if facing one street or seventy-two feet if on a corner facing on two streets.

On the suggestion of Councillor Crease, it was decided to notify residents to remove immediately overhanging shrubs and plants which encroach upon roadways and sidewalks of the municipality.

The Revolt of Mothers, Matrons & Dowagers
By Lucile LaMarre

The revolt is against time honored dignity and age. These moderns are seeking the Fountain of Youth in a most iconoclastic manner. Nowadays, it takes an expert to distinguish a mother from a daughter. Their skirts are as short—their hosiery as sheer and fine—their heels as high—their hats as rakish. ¶ No longer do modistes strive for dignity nor for fashions that reflect the relative ages of mother, grandmother, spinster aunts and young things. All they endeavor to achieve is youth. And, since two outstanding characteristics mark youth, the present day fashions reflect them—simplicity and restlessness. The fashions are very simple and very lovely, but they change weekly. The skirt length varies monthly. Now it's getting shorter and shorter while the hose are keeping up with it. Colors which play such a prominent part in fashion—are fashionable for but a month or so. Imagine what the makers of fashion are up against with these conditions. They can't sit back and rest as they used to when there was only one model and one color, season in and season out. ¶ One of the leading houses is one of the oldest—and, what seems a bit amazing—they're abreast, and often ahead of the times in their fashions. But not for an instant have they neglected the high quality that has won for them such a marvelous reputation with the older generation who lived for quality only. That house is Kayser.

WORK OF NATIONAL I.O.D.E. REVIEWED

Mrs. Curtis Sampson Tells Municipal Chapter of Winnipeg Proceedings

Mrs. Curtis Sampson's report of the National Chapter proceedings at the Winnipeg meeting in June was the principal feature of the agenda of the Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., yesterday afternoon, when it resumed its activities after the Summer vacation. The meeting was held in the Empress Hotel, with Mrs. J. Hebden Gillespie in the chair.

WORK OUTSIDE CANADA

Mrs. Simpson in her comprehensive and interesting report spoke of the work being done by chapters in the Yukon and in the Bermudas. Mrs. Cooke Adams, C.B.E., had presented a resume of the work of the chapters in the United States, fourteen states being represented in the national organization.

In connection with the Navy League, Mrs. Sampson quoted from the address given by Miss Church to the effect that "For years Britain has protected our commerce with her sea police force. This costs Britain $6 per capita, while Canada only pays 16c. per capita. We have 13,000 miles of sea coast and to be supreme on land we should shoulder our responsibility on the sea."

Other branches of the work reported included I.O.D.E. Girl Guides, League of Nations, provincial reports, war memorial, work in India, and the secretary and treasurer's report, all of which proved eminently satisfactory.

At the close of her report, Mrs. Sampson was accorded a hearty vote of thanks and was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers on behalf of the Florence Nightingale Chapter.

PRINCE'S THANKS

Correspondence read at the meeting yesterday included a letter of thanks from the Prince of Wales, through his private secretary, thanking the chapter for the message of greeting and the flowers which Mrs. L. A. Genge and her committee had arranged in the Royal suite at the Empress Hotel.

Other letters included one from Mrs. John Oliver, thanking the members for their expression of sympathy and lovely wreath, also a note of thanks for flowers from Mrs. Jessie Chipman, a visitor in the city. On behalf of the Esquimalt War Memorial committee, the secretary wrote expressing appreciation of the I.O.D.E. representation at the ceremony of the unveiling, when all the chapters were represented with their standards. A letter from the Diamond Jubilee celebration committee expressing thanks for helpful co-operation in the celebrations, and thanks from several persons for the decoration of pioneers' graves were also received, also from Mrs. Flora Drummond and Mrs. Henderson, expressing the pleasure they had enjoyed during their visit to Victoria.

Mrs. A. N. Mouat as Echoes secretary, asked for reports to be sent in to her before October 20, and suggested that subscriptions be paid at the annual meeting when chapter fees are paid. Mrs. A. E. Hopkins presented the treasurer's report in the absence of Mrs. H. K. Prior.

LOCAL SCHOOL'S SUCCESS

Miss Cooke, educational secretary, referred with pleasure to the winning of the Sarah Maxwell essay prize by a pupil of the South Park School, this being the fourth time this school had won a Dominion-wide contest.

She told of the benefits derived by students under the War Memorial scholarships and under secondary education, a more detailed account of which was postponed until the next meeting. Miss Cooke asked the chapters to purchase their I.O.D.E. calendars, and commended on chapter which had ordered 100 for distribution in schools, offices and public buildings.

A resolution sent in by a chapter concerning the condition of the soldiers' plot in Ross Bay cemetery was referred to the convener of that committee.

BURNABY MEETING

Notice of the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter, to be held in Burnaby, B.C., on Thursday and Friday, October 27 and 28, was contained in a letter asking the favor of the Municipal Chapter to change the date of their regular meeting, which request was complied with and the meeting will be held a week earlier in order not to conflict with the semi-annual meeting.

Carne Rebekah Lodge—All members of Carne Rebekah Lodge I.O.O.F. and sojourning members are specially requested to be present at to-night's meeting on the occasion of the annual visit of the president of the Rebekah Assembly of B.C.

FORMER ENGINEER TO CITY DIES IN EAST

Late Chas. H. Rust Held City Post From 1911 to 1918

Charles H. Rust, city engineer for Victoria from 1911 to 1918, died yesterday at his home in Toronto, aged seventy-five years. The late Mr. Rust was city engineer of Toronto at the time he accepted the Victoria appointment, succeeding Angus Smith in that post.

During his regime here he was known as a genius for organization, and the system he instituted for the organization of repair gangs and other branches of public works is still in vogue in the city. He also did invaluable work on the construction by-laws, including the paving of streets, sewer construction and similar undertakings. One of his biggest achievements was in connection with the Sooke waterworks. When the contractors fell down on the job, Mr. Rust went in and took charge, completing the dam and flow line. A. A. Foreman was assistant city engineer at that time. In 1918 Mr. Rust returned to Toronto, where he was again appointed city engineer.

YOUR BABY and MINE
by MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

HOME MADE POWDER NOT ADVISED

Mrs. A. F. Writes:

"Will you please tell me how to make a powder to use for my baby? I use—, but it is expensive and a box lasts for such a short time."

ANSWER:

I'm sorry that I can't give you a recipe for making a good talcum powder. I think these should be much finer than could be made at home, in order that they may not be irritating to the skin. The powder you are using now is not a good one and I would advise you to make a change. You may write me again and I'll tell you personally my reasons for saying this.

Mrs. A. W. L. Writes:

"Can you tell me which is better to buy, silk and wool, or all woll, or all cotton shirts for a baby? Of what material should the bands be made? Is castile soap a good soap for babies?"

ANSWER:

It depends largely on your particular climate how much wool should be in the first shirts. Half wool and cotton, or half silk and wool is generally a wise choice for the new baby. A lighter weight wool can be chosen for the Summer baby. At least one garment of the baby's should contain some wool.

The first binder is made of unhemmed, fine flannel. The band, which is used after the navel is healed, is of the same knitted material as the shirt and of about the same weight. It has no sleeves and is like a small sleeveless shirt with tab for diaper, and shoulder straps. Castile is a good soap to use for babies.

Mrs. R. W. Writes:

"My baby weighed over nine pounds when born and now at two and one-half months weighs over thirteen pounds. Is that the proper gain? His upper lip is dead white and he has no color in his face. He sleeps well all night long and seldom cries. Is there anything you can advise me. He is a nursing baby?"

ANSWER:

It is possible that he is anemic. He has made a good gain and there certainly seems nothing very wrong with him. You might feel better satisfied if you let a doctor look at him.

French Generals Greet Doughboys At Paris Meeting

Paris, Sept. 23. — The American Legion brought its greatest convention to a close yesterday after the legionnaires had come again to see Paris, see it with eyes nearly ten years older than when they saw it last. The veterans came with a warning that they would be pelted with rotten eggs and assaulted. They were thrown kisses and embraced. Doumergue, Poincare, Tardieu, Lygues and Marin and other French statesmen called them brothers and a long line of French generals hailed them as comrades.

The legion chose Edward Elwell Spafford, New York lawyer, as commander and adopted forty-five resolutions, many of them designed to improve condition of United States war veterans, their wives and children.

The time used is Pacific standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of lower low water.

NEW CARGO RECORD FOR LUMBER SET

Six Million Feet on One Vessel is Largest Ever Taken From Northwest

Seattle, Sept. 23.—A consignment of 6,000,000 feet of lumber, largest straight lumber cargo sent from North Pacific ports to Europe, will be lifted by the steamship Belpareil under charter to the Canadian-American Shipping Company at the Columbia River and Puget Sound. The big shipment is to be loaded partly on the Columbia River, 1,500,000 feet being booked from that locality, while the majority of the cargo, 4,500,000 feet, will be lifted on Puget Sound. The Belpareil has just reached the Columbia River and has started loading. She is due here to start September 27, and probably will be able to sail by October 1. Ports of delivery include Rotterdam, Antwerp, Bremen and Hamburg.

Besides being the largest lumber cargo for Europe in many months, it is also believed by shipping men to be the largest sent from the North Pacific this season to any range.

Laden to her capacity of 4,900,000 feet, the steamship Atlantic City, also under charter to the Canadian-American Shipping Company, sailed yesterday for Osaka, Nagoya and Yokohama. Her cargo was lifted at Alberni, B.C., and at Puget Sound.

Derrick Barge to Attempt Salvage of Stranded Vessel

San Francisco, Sept. 23.—Plans announced by the Dollar Line steamship officials yesterday call for a rearrangement of the schedules of the Dollar round-the-world steamers to make New York the first port of call on the Atlantic, so as to permit the liners to arrive here on Tuesdays instead of Wednesdays as at present. The company's round-the-world vessels now make Boston their first port of call after sailing from Marseilles, but the new plans call for Boston to be made on a shuttle schedule from New York similar to the schedule of the company's transpacific liners between here and San Pedro. The new schedule will be passed on to-day.

Haviside Derrick Barge No. 4, the only craft of its kind on the Pacific Coast with a lifting capacity that company officials say is equal to twenty tugs, left here late Wednesday in tow of the steamer John C. Kirkpatrick, bound for Decanse Point, fourteen miles south of San Diego, where the steamer Circinus is reported on the rocks. The Circinus was bound from the Atlantic coast for San Pedro and San Francisco when she struck on the rocks, and the derrick barge will attempt to set her free.

The Dollar liner President McKinley, Capt. A. O. Lustie commanding, arrived here from the Orient early yesterday with a capacity list of cabin passengers and a large steerage list.

HOSPITAL TANGLE OVER BABY SOLVED

Law Says Baby Girl is Smith Offspring; Mother Unconvinced

Cleveland, Sept. 13.—Legally the Smith "baby tangle," was solved last night, but in the mind of a heart-broken mother doubt still lurked—undisturbed by the hand of justice.

"I shall accept the baby girl as my child, but doubt as to its parentage will never be dispelled in my mind," Mrs. Sam Smith said last night, through a veil of tears after she had partly recovered from her hysterical reaction to the judge's decision in the courtroom.

Judge Weygandt dismissed the Smith's habeas corpus petition demanding their child "George Smith" after he had heard nurses, doctors, hospital attaches, and the Smiths themselves tell their story from the witness stand.

"Mrs. Smith, the only thing you as a mother will do, I know, is to accept this baby girl as your very own," Judge Weygandt said in dismissing the petition. "There is no evidence any place that an yother baby might be yours. We will all hope, as the years go on, that if this little girl lives and grows strong, she will make you as happy as though she had been a boy."

After the judge had finished, pandemonium broke loose in the courtroom. Fathers and mothers who had crowded the courtroom during the hearing broke through the railing weeping hysterically to surround the heartbroken mother.

Mrs. Smith broke down and was unable to speak for some time, while deputies hastened to restore order.

The baby was born August 22.

Miss Ruth Meyer, nurse and key witness in the "baby tangle," testified upon cross-examination as the first witness that she was positive the baby girl Mrs. Sam Smith nursed is her child.

Dr. William Glendinning, who followed Miss Meyer on the stand, testified that his examination had revealed certain dominant characteristics in the baby girl common in other members of the Sam Smith family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith followed the doctor to the stand, and told the court of the doubt in their mind as to the parentage of the baby girl they have been given.

The habeas corpus action was instituted by Sam Smith after he had been dissatisfied with the hospital's explanation of a "clerical error." The mother had been told that she gave birth to a baby boy, and discovered nine days later that the child she nursed was a girl.

MacLEAN SEEKS PUBLIC VIEW OF TAXATION POLICY

Grants to municipalities consume $4,000,000 annually, which if not supplied by the Government would increase taxation of property holders considerably.

TAXES REDUCED

Premier MacLean stressed the fact in the face of all criticisms as to extravagance of his Government that taxes upon inhabitants had been reduced at the rate of $2,500,000 annually for the last four years. The Premier acknowledged that on per capita basis British Columbia's taxation was greater than any other province, the explanation of which was its broad expanse, rapid growth and consequent heavy capital expenditures.

Premier MacLean dealt with the liquor business from a Provincial Government phase, stating it was undoubtedly of a most difficult nature. He contended, however, the recent judicial probes of the departments and officials in this connection completely exonerated everyone from any suggestion of wrongful administration. "We pay too high a price for liquor in British Columbia, more than it is worth in my opinion, and I am not a prohibitionist," said the Premier. "But remember, on every bottle, $1.70 goes to the Federal treasury."

DEFICITS ELIMINATED

Taxation on motor cars and land owners in British Columbia were stated to be lower than existed in the neighboring State of Washington. The final analysis of the financial policy of the Liberal regime, the speaker said, showed that annual deficits prior to 1916 of $4,000,000 a year had been converted into substantial surpluses, notwithstanding increasing difficulties presented to modern governments in conducting public affairs.

The Government had been criticized in some quarters for its generous policy as to social legislation, but it intended to continue along these lines, having due regard to establishing confidence in the Government by capital so that it could have assurance of not being taxed exorbitantly and also secure in industry a square deal for the wage earner so that he might receive just reward for labor. Great wastage did exist in the use of natural resources, but practical methods applied in manufacturing products from raw materials, by Government supervision, was rectifying this situation. There was still room for further improvement in this regard, the Premier said.

PROGRESSIVE POLICY

The vast problem of making some satisfactory adjustments with the Province's railroad venture, the P.G.E., was receiving earnest attention with hopeful progress towards solution. The divergency of interests in the centres of population in the Province was a difficulty that could only be surmounted by definite progressive development policy of Government. The Premier stated vindication of the present Government was shown in the support given its candidates in recent by-elections. He urged Fernie electors to take more interest in public affairs and support only administrations acting for their general prosperity.

Transportation Company is Sold

Seattle, Sept. 23.—The Eagle Harbor Transportation Company, one of the oldest corporations operating on Puget Sound, has been sold to interests representing Arthur K. Burr, Seattle real estate man, he announced yesterday. The consideration is understood to be about $50,000. No change in operation is contemplated, Burr said.

A man went to a newspaper office and complained that his death had been announced erroneously.

"Well," said the editor, "we never contradict anything we have published, but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll put you in the births column to-morrow and give you a fresh start."

COLWOOD W.I. IS INSTITUTES' HOST

Winners of Willows Cup Entertained at Enjoyable Social

Colwood, Sept. 23.—The members of the Colwood Women's Institute were hostesses yesterday afternoon to the members of the Victoria, Royal Oak, Luxton and Happy Valley and Langford Women's Institutes, the three former mentioned being fellow competitors in the competition for the cup at the Willows Fair, and Langford being Colwood's nearest neighbor institute.

No effort had been spared to make the afternoon a most pleasant and successful one. The large hall had been decorated very tastefully for the occasion by Mrs. C. H. Goodall, convener; Mrs. John Goodall, Mrs. T. Godfrey and Mrs. A. Godfrey. Small tea tables were dotted all over the hall, each vieing with the next in its decoration, a wealth of chrysanthemums and dahlias making the place bright with color.

The guests were received by the president of the Colwood Institute, Miss Marion Kelly, and there was comfortable seating accommodation for all, in spite of this being one of the largest afternoon gatherings ever seen in Colwood Hall.

An attractive programme of entertainment had been arranged, opened by Miss Margaret Peatt with a pianoforte solo which was well received. Miss White of Victoria and Miss Hawkswood gave very pleasing vocal selections, each receiving hearty applause and calls for encore. Miss Hawkswood and Mrs. Ed. Shields accompanied the singers. Miss Evelyn Smith contributed to the programme with a well executed pianoforte solo, and Miss Kelly gave a delightful reading, "The Autograph Album."

A delicious tea was served under the convenership of Mrs. H. Parker, those assisting being Mesdames T. and A. Godfrey, A. and E. Peatt, C. H. and J. Goodall, Ed. Shields, Murray, Hopwood, Piercy, Spencer, Gosse and Miss Hawkswood.

Mrs. Palmer, president of the Victoria W.I.; Mrs. Pinhorn, Royal Oak W. I., and Mrs. R. Brown, Luxton and Happy Valley W.I. each spoke a few words of hearty congratulation to the Colwood Institute on their success in again winning the cup, and announced their intention of trying to wrest it from them next year. They also thanked, on behalf of their respective institutes, the Colwood ladies for the most delightful afternoon's entertainment. Miss Kelly suitably responded on behalf of Colwood.

The following guests were present:

Victoria Institute—Mesdames Palmer, Adam, Weight, Gilson, Urquhart, Terry, Wilkinson, McIntyre, Laird, McCoubrey, Brown, Guest, Richdale, Rowarth, Nicholson, Savory, Peden, Miss Savory; Royal Oak Institute—Mesdames Pinhorn, Stone, Hutchison, Bassett, Grieve, Reid, De Rousie, Nicholson, Coffey; Strutt, Rand, Horsey, Miss Bainbridge Smith, Miss Oldfield, Miss Patricia Hutchison, Mrs. W. A radio concert was heard during the tea hour by kindness of John Goodall of Colwood.

NEW UNIT OF LAND AT U.B.C. OPENED

Pattullo Expects Area to Commence Carrying Institution Within Two Years

Opening of the second unit of the British Columbia University subdivision area outside Vancouver was announced at the Lands Department to-day. Such demands for real estate in the Government-owned area have been received by the department that it has been decided to open the second unit for sale before it has been completely prepared for use.

Meanwhile the first unit is rapidly filling up, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, explained. From now on, Mr. Pattullo predicted, there will be no difficulty in selling at advantageous prices the lands set aside to pay for the maintenance of the University.

"Within two years the endowment area will commence to carry the cost of the university," Mr. Pattullo said. In this way, he explained, the expense of the university will gradually be removed from the provincial treasury.

Residential Market Active, Says Christy

Residential real estate business is moving, according to R. G. Christy, head of the financial firm of R. G. Christy & Co.

"House buyers are in the market," Mr. Christy said. "We have been selling a house a day. The selling prices of the residences which we have put through the last three days only total $20,000, running like this $10,000, $6,000 and $4,000 respectively."

AERIAL SURVEYS REVEAL POSSIBLE MOUNTAIN PASS

Engineers to Follow Observations From Air With Northern Exploration on Foot

Seek Route For Rupert Highway in Unknown Wilderness North of Skeena

Discovery of what may prove to be a new pass through the Coast Mountains from Prince Rupert to the interior, where a new transprovincial road could be built, was announced at the Public Works Department to-day.

Following the success of engineers in discovering this supposed pass by air, Hon. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, ordered immediate surveys on foot to check up the aerial observations and explore the road construction possibilities which they have revealed.

The cut through the mountains which the first aerial flight in the history of Canada has indicated runs from the head of Wark Channel in a northeasterly direction. Engineers on foot will now try to find if the newly-discovered valley goes far enough east to provide a grade for a road.

TO INVADE WILDS

To do this a party of expert observers will ascend the Estew River on foot next month, establish a cache and base camp and then strike into the unknown, unexplored wilderness at the headwaters of the river. They will endeavor to discover in the first place whether the newly-discovered valley actually runs far enough East to cross the watershed of the rivers running into the Skeena. Secondly, they will try to find out whether it would be possible to build a road from the head of the valley still further east to the Kitsumgallum River and thence down to the Skeena.

TO AVOID SKEENA

The object of these explorations is to find a route for a transprovincial road link back of the Skeena River. To build a road along the Seena would be a feat of the gravest engineering difficulties and enormous cost. It is hoped that aerial surveys have pointed the way to an alternative route north of the Seena.

Already the surveys ordered by Dr Sutherland have changed the map of northern British Columbia. They have shown that former ideas about the country north of the Skeena are radically wrong and have revealed what may prove to be a new pass through the coast mountains. In addition, they have established the definite usefulness of airplanes in conducting preliminary road surveys in mountainous country.

C. W. Meyers, Detroit, first with a $5,000 prize; Leslie Miller, Des Moines, second, $3,000, and J. S. Charles, Richmond, Va., third, $1,000. Winners of fourth prize of $500 and fifth prize of $250 were not announced yesterday, in the absence of information on which it is to be computed.

SAN FRANCISCO RACES

Spokane, Sept. 23.—The roll of contestants to finish in the Class "A" Pacific Coast air derby was complete yesterday with the arrival of N. A. Goddard of San Diego.

E. N. P. Lippiatt, Los Angeles, won first prize, $1,500; Lee Schoenhair, Hollywood, second, $1,000, and Vance Breeze, San Francisco, third, $500.

CLASS "B"

Arrival last evening of J. C. Rinehart of Portland and Art Borne of Los Angeles, in the Class "B" Coast derby, accounted for all the flyers who were not forced cut.

C. L. Langdon of Aberdeen, Wash., won first prize, $1,000; D. C. Warren, San Francisco, second, $500; Lee Willey of Los Angeles, third, $250.

Borne, who arrived at 5.20 o'clock last night, apparently qualified for fourth prize, $150, but Rinehart, arriving at 6.50 p.m., fifty minutes after the deadline for the close of the race, lost the fifth prize of $100.

FEWER COMPLAINTS BEFORE CITY NOW

List of Properties For Tax Sale Shows Considerable Shrinkage

Number of Appeals From Valuations Also Shows Big Drop

The annual tax sale of property in default in the City of Victoria will be opened at the City Council Chamber on September 30, the date set by statute. This year there will be fewer parcels in the sale than in other years, states Edwin C. Smith, city treasurer.

An opportunity for those whose property is in default to keep their holdings off the list will be open until Tuesday of next week, after which day the lists are prepared. The payment of the charges outstanding on the property in the meantime automatically withdraws the land from sale. In its annual tax sale the city has adopted the policy of forcing no sale that can be averted, with every opportunity to the owners to redeem wherever they are able to do so.

The Court of Revision on the Assessment Roll will sit on the following day, Saturday, October 1, when an early adjournment will be taken. Both proceedings will open at the hour of 10 a.m. The Court of Revision this year is composed of Mayor J. C. Pendray, Aldermen William Marchant, J. L. Mara, H. O. Litchfield, and John Harvey.

Also indicating an improving condition in the city, the list of appeals is not quite ten per cent of the number filed in 1923, with under fifty appeals to be heard by the forthcoming sessions, as compared with 500 appeals in the years 1922-23.

R. MACNICOL NOW ORGANIZER FOR CANADIAN LEGION

Robert Macnicol has been appointed organizing secretary of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, with headquarters in Vancouver, and will assume his new duties on October 1, it was announced today.

Mr. Macnicol will continue his association with the Victoria realty and insurance firm of R. Macnicol & Company.

In view of the pressure of work involved, Mr. Macnicol will not be able to attend to his duties as a member of the Saanich Board of School Trustees during the next few weeks. He has therefore requested Chairman Hobbs to accord him leave of absence for the ensuing three months.

The Canadian Legion is preparing for a wide extension of its posts in British Columbia and Western Canada in the course of the next few months.

PROVINCE FAILS IN DEATH DUTY CLAIM

Appeal Will be Taken From Ruling of Mr. Justice Morrison

Vancouver, Sept. 23.—Nearly $2,000 succession duty, claimed by the Minister of Finance from the estate of Mrs. Leonora Clapham, who died thirteen years ago in Vancouver, has been lost to the Province through a judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison in Supreme Court.

Some time prior to her death, Mrs. Clapham converted her property into a trust of which she received a life interest, and which will eventually be shared by her children, of whom Mrs. Elizabeth B. Burke Roche of Victoria was the principal beneficiary. The property, thus created a trust, was worth approximately $110,000, and Mrs. Clapham's estate otherwise did not exceed $100.

In 1916 the provincial authorities decided that the trust was not liable for succession duty; but in 1924 a new statement was issued assessing the estate for nearly $2,000. Mr. Justice Morrison held that the second statement, under the signature of the Minister of Finance, was issued without authority, and is illegal and null and void; and he decreed that plaintiff, Mrs. Burke Roche, as executrix of the estate of her mother, was not liable for any succession duty. E. C. Mayers was counsel for the estate. Mr. Cecil Killam appeared for the Minister of Finance. An appeal will be taken, according to Mr. Killam.

MAINLAND ACTION IS STUDIED HERE

Action of Vancouver Municipal Employees May Affect Local Case

City Endeavoring to Secure Adoption of Less Costly Pension Plan

The action of the Vancouver City Hall staff in petitioning for the operation of the Provincial Superannuation Act, as reported by the Canadian Press yesterday, is being watched here with considerable interest.

An informal session of the City Council has been called for 3 p.m. to-day, when the results of the canvass of all civic services will be studied in the light of the policy to be pursued by the city on the pension question.

So far the city has laid its case for the compromise plan of pension benefits under city control, before the inside and outside staffs of the city and the firemen; while the Police Commission is in touch with the men of that force.

In the canvass the council asked the employees if they would accept the compromise plan, in place of the full operation of the Provincial Superannuation Act. As some of the groups have already petitioned under the Act, acceptance of the compromise would lead to a withdrawal of the petitions.

The full operation of the Superannuation Act would cost the employees $25,000 a year, and the city $29,000 a year. The same benefits could be given for $15,000 a year in so far as the city's contribution is concerned, contended Alderman E. S. Woodward in a recent talk to the men.

The regular session of the City Council, for the consideration of general business, will take place Monday at 8 p.m.

FATHER TESTIFIES AGAINST DAUGHTER

Lays Information and Takes Stand For Prosecution; Son Also Crown Witness

Magistrate Jay reserved his decision in the case of Minnie Estella Ferguson, charged with an infraction of the Land Registry Act, after hearing the case of the prosecution in police court this morning. C. L. Harrison called witnesses for the Crown, but W. C. Moresby, counsel for the defendant, brought forward no evidence. The decision of the court was reserved until Tuesday next.

His Honor, explaining that the case was the only one of the kind he could remember in police annals, stated he would require time to consider the evidence.

The charge, extremely lengthy, was amended this morning and reworn by D. H. Cox, informant. Mr. Cox, the father of the defendant, laid the information against his own daughter. Hugh James Elliott, a witness for the prosecution, testified against his own mother. As the charge now stands Mrs. Ferguson was a party to the making of a document in which her son's age was sworn to as being over twenty-one.

OUTLINES CASE

Mr. Harrison, outlining his case, said that it was practically confined to the declaration made by Hugh James Elliott when transferring a property to his mother, Mrs. Ferguson. In doing this it had been necessary to make a declaration to the effect that Elliott was over the age of twenty-one years. Mother and son went to the offices of Harold A. Beckwith, local attorney, and there the declaration of the boy's age was made. He would show, said the prosecutor, that the boy had been told to tell Mr. Beckwith that he was twenty-one years old if asked, and if he was not asked, to say nothing. That was the sum and substance of the case, he said.

J. T. Muirhead, clerk of the Land Registry office, was called to produce and prove certain documents which had to do with the transference of the property from the son to the mother, Mrs. Ferguson. The documents were produced and placed as exhibits.

Harold Beckwith was called. He told of having made out a deed of conveyance from Elliott to Mrs. Ferguson, whom he recognized when confronted with them in court, and of taking an acknowledgment of the maker. That was on June 27, 1927, he said.

Elliott had answered the formal questions which went with the document, said witness, and affirmatively when questioned as to whether or not he was over the age of twenty-one years.

SON IS CALLED

Elliott, the boy himself, was called. He related how he had participated in transactions without really knowing what they were all about. He knew, he said, that his mother had had an automobile accident, and that to protect her certain property which she owned had been transferred to him, for there was a claim for damages against her. His mother, he said, had told him to say he was twenty-one if asked by the lawyer who arranged the transfer of the property.

Witness was cross-examined by Mr Moresby. Counsel recalled facts which led up to the transfer. For the purpose of protecting the mother, he said, it had been deemed advisable to transfer the property in question. Witness said he thought so. Witness then said he knew that before his mother owned this property his grandfather had owned it. He said he thought his mother had paid $3,000 to his grandfather for it. It was situated at the corner of King's Road and Vancouver Street, he said. He added that he thought they (his relatives) were using his name to protect his mother. He did not want the property himself, he said.

Mrs. Sigurd Sveinson was called to prove the boy's age. Elliott was under twenty-one at present, she said. She was his sister.

D. H. Cox was then called. He told a long story of developments which led up to the transfer of the property which his daughter, the accused, had purchased from him with trust funds left by her former husband to his heirs. She, Mrs. Ferguson and himself, were the trustees of the estate, witness said.

PARENTS IGNORANT OF CHILDREN'S FATE

Many of Indian Families Hunting Know Nothing of Saskatchewan Fire

Prince Albert, Sept. 23.—Parental grief was absent yesterday at the funeral of the nineteen young victims of the fire that destroyed the Beuval Mission at Lac La Plonge, Monday, for it has been found impossible to notify them of the Bereavement. Many of the Indian families, which become nomadic at this time of the year, started their annual pilgrimage into the wilds in search of furs and venison several weeks ago and are now beyond human reach.

Other mourners, however, took their place, as the whole community attended to pay tribute to the bravery of the sisters and children.

LEVINE FORCED TO LAND IN DISTANCE HOP

the ground in hop-skip-jump fashion twice before she rose with the aid of a thirty-six-mile wind and circled away to the East There had been some rain and the plane at the take-off was headed into a rainbow, hailed by those on the field as a good omen. Prior to tuning up the engine a barograph was sealed into place and the tanks were loaded with 480 gallons of gasoline.

Levine wore the "lucky" blue striped suit and shirt in which he crossed the Atlantic. He and the Imperial Airways pilot had apparently settled the difference which arose between them last week as there was no friction at the start, and Levine made a last-minute arrangement for insurance for Mrs. Hinchcliffe in case of a crash.

Bidding goodbye to his wife and daughter, Captain Hinchcliffe said: "Don't worry. The next message you get from me will be dated from India."

It was estimated that the Columbia would be able to stay in the air fifty-five hours.

Bananas form a substantial part of the rations taken along in the Columbia. Levine detests them, but Captain Hinchcliffe is very fond of them, and took along three dozen. He also took a quantity of apples and oranges.

Mrs. Hinchliffe, who prepared the beef broth and coffee, asked Levine what he desired.

"Oh, anything will do for me," he replied. "I might appreciate a sandwich or an orange, but no bananas."

The Columbia's route was planned to take her across Europe to Constantinople, thence by way of Aleppo, Syria, Basra, Irak, Bussire and Jaska, Persia, following the Persian coast; then Karachi, India and Delhi. Between Aleppo and Basra, they will fly over the Arabian Desert.

Carrying out his impulse to locate here Mr. Hill investigated a number of business openings and decided on a lease of the Stobart-Pease premises as an apartment house scheme.

The third and fourth floor accommodation contains provision for forty rooms, which will be refurnished and renovated throughout. The furnishings will be supplied by David Spencer Limited. The lease was negotiated through Messrs. Pooley and Davis, agents for the owners.

Blackheads

are simply maddening, at times, spoiling the complexion, ruining good times. Why put up with them? RADOX BATH SALTS will remove them, without the least trouble or pain. Ask your druggist for a pink package of RADOX (60c). Stir a teaspoonful into a glass of real hot water, dab this solution on your face where affected, wipe your face dry after a few moments—and blackheads vanish. Lastly, apply a little cold cream. Easy, isn't it? Use RADOX to-night!

Six handsome trophies and many other valuable prizes have been put up for competition.

Displays of dressed furs by local and outside dealers will be a feature of the show. The services of expert judges have been obtained for judging both the animal section and the dressed fur exhibition.

Directors for the exhibition are: Rev. Montagu Bruce, W. Miller Higgs, Harry Reid and N. A. Moore.

TUNNEY ADMITS HE HAD CLOSE CALL

Smelling Salts and His Mad Seconds Turn Tide

After the Seventh Round Bronson, His Chief Second, Talked So Violently That Gene Flew Out of His Corner and Accepted Dempsey's Taunt to "Come on and Fight"; Challenger Says He Is Through and Refuses to Offer Alibi

Chicago, Sept. 23.—A stiff sniff of smelling salts and a little "strong language" saved the heavyweight championship for Gene Tunney. The champion said so himself to-day.

The whiff of aromatic spirits and the "strong language" of Jimmy Bronson, Gene's chief second, sent the champion out from his corner in the eighth round "fighting mad" to beat Jack Dempsey, the punching menace who floored him for the count of nine in the seventh and taunted him to "come on and fight."

"Just a few moments before, Jimmy told me to keep working toward Dempsey's right side to avoid the left hook," said Gene. "I did that all right, until Jack wobbled. Then I went in to get him, grew careless, and the first thing I knew I was on the floor.

TOLD TO STAY DOWN

"My first thoughts were, 'What is this? How did I get here?' I ought to be ashamed of myself.' That smash stunned me, but I could have got up at the count of five.

"But instead, I looked across to my corner and there was Jimmy waving me to stay down. So I did until the count reached nine. Then I made very certain that I would be hit with no more punches like that, at least until my head cleared.

"Dempsey said: 'Come on and fight.' He could have said: 'Come on and get hit and knocked down again.' My lips never moved but my mind said to Dempsey: 'So long, Jack. I'll see you next round when I'm feeling better.' Then I went to dancing and when I felt better I came back and won the fight."

Then Jimmy Bronson took up the tale.

"Gene came back to his corner after the seventh badly hurt. I asked him how he felt. 'Don't worry about me. I'm all right,' Gene said. So I gave him the smelling salts. Then I asked him again: 'How do you feel?' and again he said, 'Don't worry about me, Jimmy, I'm all right.'

"So at that I gave him some "strong language," some more smelling salts and some more "strong language," and sent him out there to answer the bell for the eighth. I really made him mad enough to chase Dempsey around, but I did not know it."

TAPE TOO TIGHT

Tunney was unable to shake hands with his guests due to pain and swelling caused by too tight application of the tape used to bind his hands. Not a mark showed on his face.

The conqueror of Jack Dempsey twice within a year had nothing but praise for the former champion to-day, when the heal of the "open letter" controversy had died and talk of fouls, poor sportsmanship and long counts subsided.

"I'm afraid he is through now," Gene said regretfully. "Now that his dream of regaining the title has faded I doubt if he ever will fight again. He has been a great fighter, one of the greatest of the ring, and the gamest foeman I ever faced.

"I'd like another shot at him just to prove that I could go out there and slug him, toe to toe, and whip him at his own game. I did it in the final rounds. I could do it again."

NOT SO SURE

But the man who wielded the smelling salts and doled out the "strong language when necessary, shook his head, apparently with memories of the heart wrench that took every member of the Tunney entourage when Gene suddenly hit the floor.

Tunney will spend the next few days with friends in Cleveland. Within a few days he will go to the Maine woods for a vacation of indefinite length. He has no ring plans, but would prefer to fight twice within the coming year if only to keep in best of condition.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Jack Dempsey went back to his wife early to-day without the "bacon" he promised to bring home.

"It's all right," said Estelle Taylor, his actress wife, when she had taken one look. "I thought from the radio story you had been hurt."

"It's all over," Jack said. "I guess I'm through fighting."

"What's the difference?" Estelle said.

After the seventh round had failed to bring victory, Mrs. Dempsey, sitting by a radio in a North Side hotel, became hysterical and it was some time before her companion could quiet her. In the last two rounds, when Jack was slowly but surely losing, Mrs. Dempsey began to weep. She threw herself on the bed and fainted at the announcement of Tunney's victory. It did not take long, though, for her to recover her composure and by the time Jack had arrived, an hour later, she was calm and smiling.

NO ALIBIS

Dempsey had no further comment to make to-day concerning the "long count" given Tunney in the seventh round. He said that was one of the "breaks" of the game and Tunney "got the breaks, that was all."

Jack never has been a "squawker," and last night was no exception. Jack accepted the decision with a smile, refusing to add anything that might detract from Tuhney's victory.

Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's manager, however, made the accusation that Dempsey was robbed, that Tunney had been knocked out and that he intended to appeal to the Illinois State Athletic Commission to have the decision reversed. Flynn declared that besides this "knockout" of Tunney, Dempsey won six of the ten rounds.

George Lytton, one of the judges, made the surprising statement that Dempsey's delay of three seconds in getting back to his own corner, after flooring Tunney, really cost him the championship.

THE REAL CAUSE

Two legs, rather than two fists, coupled with a muddled brain, really kept Jack from the title, he said. Two months ago he knocked out Jack Sharkey by taking advantage of the Bostonian's carelessness in dropping his hands while making a protest of foul.

Dempsey won that fight by hair-trigger thinking. He lost last night's fight by becoming muddled in an emergency.

Dempsey displayed no marks of the fight to-day, except two wounds over his left eye. The biggest wound, a diamond-shaped gash, was just at the edge of the eyebrow, while the second was a gash an inch long at the end of the eyebrow. Both were old scars.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Leo P. Flynn, Jack Dempsey's manager, announced this afternoon that he would file a protest with the Illinois Athletic Commission against the decision of the referee and judges giving the fight to Gene Tunney.

He said he had talked with Dempsey and that the challenger was confident he had knocked out Tunney in the seventh round.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Experts at the Dempsey-Tunney ringside agreed the champion got the benefit of a "long count" in the seventh round when he was knocked down, but a majority also accepted the view that Gene would have got to his feet whenever "nine" was reached.

Paul Beeler, the knockdown timekeeper, told newspapermen that thirteen seconds elapsed during the count, but that the extra four seconds was due to the interval of getting Dempsey to the "farthest corner" as prescribed by the rules.

FANS IN $5 SEATS WERE A LONG TIME LEARNING WHO WON

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Some of the boys in the $5 seats didn't find out who won the fight last night until they got down town some time later.

More than three city blocks away from the ring itself, the view of the thousands in the cheapest seats was so hazy and obscured by bobbing enthusiasts in front of them that when the climax came all they could do was surmise.

An announcement was made through the loud speaker system, but it was lost in the uproar. Those who looked to the ring itself for some sign as to who won saw only a score of men there, with no indication of who was the champion.

A great fog that hung over the ring and the ringsiders—a fog ceiling of smoke from thousands of cigarettes and cigars, and from the nearby railroad yards and from the flashlights of the cameramen—added to the great distances to make the ring just something white far down the bowl—something white on which two men moved. That was all.

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND 1

Dempsey missed a left lunge, falling into a clinch. Jack piled in again with two left hooks to the ribs. In the clinch that followed he clipped Gene four times with a right on the back of the head. They sparred cautiously, Dempsey preferring to feint for openings while Tunney laid back. Gene snapped a left to Dempsey's chin and followed with a solid right smash to the chin. Jack fell into a clinch, taking another right to the head as he came in. Jack dropped a left on Tunney's body. Jack backed away while the champion followed him across the ring with a volley of lefts and rights to the head close to the ropes. Gene missed an overhand right as the bell sounded.

ROUND 2

Dempsey was fighting cautiously, apparently seeking to evade the disastrous first round spasm that at Philadelphia last Fall ruined his chances to keep the title. They came out boxing again and Gene shot a left and right to the chin. They were dancing boxing high. Gene dropped an over-

St. Louis Benefit When Pirates And Giants Split Two

Cardinals Now Within Three Games of Leaders; 40,000 See Double-header

Ruth Pounds Out Another Homer; Has Six Games in Which to Get Three More

New York, Sept. 23.—The St. Louis Cardinals were back in second place to-day in the National League pennant race, their six-to-five victory over Boston yesterday having enabled them to gain ground on both Pittsburgh and New York, who split a double-header, before 40,000 fans, the greatest crowd to witness a game in Pittsburgh.

Ray Kremer pitched the Pirates to a 5-2 victory in the first game at Pittsburgh, while New York took the second, 7-1.

The Cardinals scored two runs in the ninth to beat Boston. The world's champions are now three games behind Pittsburgh and a half game ahead of New York.

Cincinnati took a double-header from Brooklyn, 2-1 and 4-2.

Charlie Root won his twenty-sixth victory at the expense of Philadelphia, 8-4. Hack Wilson smashed out his twenty-eighth homer and tied Cy Williams for the leadership of the National League.

EQUAL OLD RECORD

Babe Ruth's homer in the ninth with Koenig on base gave the Yanks an 8-7 victory over Detroit. It was Ruth's fifty-sixth circuit clout, and with six more games to play, he needs only three more such hits to equal his 1921 record. The Yank victory was the 105th of the season for the team, which tied the American League record set for a single season by the Boston Red Sox in 1912.

Washington pulled out a 10-7 win over the St. Loius Browns and Philadelphia took a double-header from Cleveland, 4-3 and 5-2.

Chicago White Sox lost their twelfth straight game, Boston winning 2-1 in the tenth.

PROVES REAL CHAMPION

GENE TUNNEY

"Long Count" Gives Tunney "Break" and He Smothers Dempsey

Never before in world sporting history have two individuals, the cynosure of eyes and ears as they were last night, for, not only was the biggest crowd in fight history gathered in the big stadium, but its story was carried over the greatest Associated Press wire hookup to all parts of the continent and its vivid details broadcast to an estimated 50,000,000 listeners—in all parts of the world by a record slashing chain of radio stations.

FAMOUS "LONG COUNT"

Those who saw the battle and those who listened and, perhaps, got a better idea of what was going on than thousands inside the arena, will argue themselves hoarse for some time to come over that seventh round, over Tunney's narrow escape from defeat and Dempsey's great bid for a knockout victory and the greatest glory of his colorful career. They know how Tunney, the master boxer, piled up a big margin in points and how the issue really was decided by his slashing three-round finish, but the debate will swirl fiercest around what may become the most famous "long count" in boxing history.

It was a strange trick of fate for Dempsey to see his big shot fall short in this fashion, for it was some years ago in his famous slugging match with Luis Firpo that Dempsey saved his title through a similar "break."

SAVED BY "LONG COUNT"

In the first round of that struggle, Dempsey, after knocking down the giant Argentine seven times, was sent hurtling through the ropes by a right-hand smash to the jaw. Down and out of the ring the champion tumbled, but it took what many observers declared to be a "long count" to get Dempsey back into the ring, dizzy and shaky, before "ten" had been said. Then, as was the case last night, the drama of conflict was about the near downfall of the king. And here was how last night's vivid scene unfolded itself in the famous seventh round:

Dempsey, nearly always the aggressor, plunging and bobbing, suddenly caught the champion off guard by shifting his attacks on his body to his jaw. A long right hand smash to the jaw sent Tunney to the ropes, dazed and sagging; a left hook with the old Dempsey viciousness behind it, clipped the champion and dumped him unceremoniously to the floor.

Tunney was too jarred to know exactly what had happened at first, but in a few seconds his inclination seemed to be to jump up. If he had decided to do so and risk another barrage, he refrained after hearing the excited yells from his corner to "take the count." Whether or not he knew he was getting a long count is something else, but he regained command of his senses sufficiently to watch the referee's toll intently and slowly climb back to his feet at "nine."

TUNNEY ON THE RUN

"Dempsey, the crowd yelling madly for him to finish the champion, held back for some reason as Tunney began circling fast, in full retreat, around the ring. Dempsey jogged, turning, to keep in view the fast stepping champion, who was intent only on taking every advantage of a chance to clear his brain and regain command of himself.

Dempsey, it seemed, might have leaped in at once and gained the upper hand, but he seemed annoyed and disdainful of the champion's retreating tactics. As Tunney circled the ring for the sixth or seventh time, Jack stopped, dropped his hands and beckoned "come on and fight." Caution, just then, was the better part of ring strategy to Tunney. He continued dodging until Dempsey, with a furious dash, connected with several hard smashes to the head. But the challenger's spurt was too late to accomplish much more damage. The round was fast finishing and the bell sounded with the rivals in a clinch.

WEATHERED THE STORM

Tunney had weathered the storm. He had the extra minute of rest to recuperate. He was still cautious when he came out in the eighth round, but he was again the clear-headed, confident boxer. As he avoided Dempsey's rushes and realized only a slashing rally would enable him to win, Tunney came back to take the "play" from Dempsey.

Except for one or two occasions, including an instant in the tenth round, when he was wrestled to the floor in a clinch, Tunney was himself, the aggressor in the final three rounds. His hooks and rights and jolts to the head repeatedly staggered the challenger. His hooks opened cuts over both of Dempsey's eyes, sending a smear of blood over the latter's face. Under this punching barrage, Dempsey sagged. At thirty-two and past the peak of his fighting form, the old mauler did not have enough stamina to last. His legs wobbled. The spirit kept him going forward. He faced defeat with colors flying but with his fighting machinery slowed down almost to a standstill. Only Dempsey's unchangeable fighting heart kept him on his feet under Tunney's sharp closing attack. Cut and bleeding Jack was a pathetic figure as, unmindful of the sound of the final bell, he kept going forward. He did not realize the fight was over, that his last chance was gone. He was the warrior to the finish even if a beaten one.

So far as the rules of the ring are concerned, they were subject to various interpretations, but Boxing Commissioner Paul Prehn at the ringside made it clear that no actual count was possible, under them, while Dempsey was not in a corner well away from his fallen foe. However, close a call he had, whatever "break" he benefitted by in this round, there was no question in the minds of observers that Tunney was master otherwise. He outpointed Dempsey for the first half of the fight and, after weathering the old warrior's most furious bid for victory, outfought, outboxed and outgeneral the challenger in the closing three rounds.

Tunney met and vanquished a Dempsey that was a far different fighter, a most dangerous puncher, and a more flaming spirit than the uncertain, floundering fighter that was toppled from the fistic throne a year ago. The champion, jolted and jarred as he had never been before and is not likely to be again, without losing, showed wonderful ability and courage to come back and fight his way to victory.

Both Canadian Golf Stars Fail To Reach Finals In U.S. Golf

Mrs. Fraser and Miss Mackenzie Lose To-day in Semi-finals at Garden City

Margin of Defeat Very Narrow; Miss Orcutt and Mrs. Horn Meet in Finals

Garden City, N.Y., Sept. 23.—Both Canadians, Miss Ada MacKenzie, champion of Toronto, and Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, were defeated in the semi-finals of the women's golf championship here to-day.

Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn of Kansas City, joined Miss Maureen Orcutt of New York in the finals by defeating Mrs. Fraser one up after a great match.

Miss Orcutt, twenty-year-old Metropolitan champion, entered the final round of the championship by defeating Miss Mackenzie 2 up and 1 to play.

The Canadian champion made a brave rally in the closing holes, and succeeded in cutting down a lead of four holes to a margin of one at the sixteenth. Her chance vanished on the seventeenth hole, when Miss Orcutt laid a perfect mashie to the green and scored a four, one below women's par, while Miss Mackenzie needed five.

ESQUIMALT JUNIORS

The Navy play Esquimalt Juniors in a friendly game of soccer at Victoria West Park on Saturday at 2.30 o'clock. The Esquimalt team follows: McVane, Edwards and William; Hick, Thompson and Standen, Woolcock, Smith, Stewart, Barnswell and Bain. Reserves, West and Bayliss.

First Division Clubs Open Series To-morrow

Saturday League Football Will Be Ushered in With Three Games Scheduled; Victoria City and Esquimalt Meet in Feature Match at Royal Athletic Park; Six Clubs Line Up Strong Teams; Many New Players Will Be Seen in Action; Games Start at 3 o'Clock

First Division soccer will be formally ushered in to-morrow afternoon with three games scheduled. The Saturday League officials have arranged a fine card of matches for the opening day of the 1927-28 season and football fans, who have been anxiously awaiting the opening of the season, should witness three closely contested games.

To-morrow's programme is as follows:
Victoria Wests vs. 16th Canadian Scottish, at Work Point.
Victoria City vs. Esquimalt, at the Royal Athletic Park.
Saanich Thistles vs. Five C's, at Beacon Hill.
All games will start sharp at 3 o'clock.

The feature game of the afternoon will be between the two keen rivals, Esquimalt and Victoria City. Both have lined up strong clubs and a real good tussle should be witnessed.

NEW FACES

Several new faces will appear on the Esquimalt line-up. "Toots" Plump, a star in local football several years ago, but who for a considerable time has been performing on Up-island elevens, will turn out with the Dockers. Esquimalt will be without Jimmy Hay and Coulter, but good men have been put in their places. Tommy Smith, who last year performed with the city, has thrown in his lot with the Dockers this season.

Young Dick Burnett, who played very well at centre-forward for Esquimalt in their final games last season, will be in that position to-morrow. Burnett, although only a youngster, is a coming star and should be able to hold down his place on the team. The remainder of the team will be the same as last year, with Bridges in goal, Joe Watt and DeCosta at fullback, and Hosmer, Darrell, Mesher and Smith on the halfback line, while the forward line will be composed of Stewart, John Watt, Burnett, Plump and Wagland.

CITY STRONG

Victoria City has lost no time in signing up players and will field a formidable team to-morrow. Jack Rodgers, who starred with James Island last year, will be the goalie. Bill Campbell and Glaney will be the fullbacks. On the halfback line will be Bob Preston, Bowman and George Preston. The City will have a strong forward line. Bissell will be at centre-forward. At outside right will be Herb. Cummins, who has been out of the city for a couple of Winters. The other forwards will be Cameron, Campbell and Belford.

The Saanich Thistles will field about the same team as last year. Hetherington will occupy the goal position with Harper and Price in front of him as fullbacks.

On the halfback line there will be the two Crowe boys, Jim and Joe, and Miller. The forward line will be Ewing, Saville, Burns, Minnis and Easler. This is a young team, but all the boys are fast and, with their dashing style of play, they hope to give the other clubs plenty to think about before the season is ended.

FIVE C'S STRONG

The Five C's will field an exceptionally strong team against the Thistles. They have signed all last year's players, along with several First Division men. This club is making its debut in senior company, having played in the junior league last season. McDonald will be in goal, with Hood and Moulton as fullbacks. On the halfback line will be Reg. Shanks, who has played with the Wests for the past two seasons and who is considered one of the best halfbacks in the city, Viggers and Sinkinson. The forward line will be composed of Sutton, Brynjolfson, Eric Quainton, Eden Quainton and Viggers.

At Work Point the Victoria Wests, associated with First Division football for years, will battle the 16th Canadian Scottish, another new entry this year. A number of new players will be seen with the greenshirts this year. Geddes will be in goal, while Dunn and Allen will form the fullback line. The halfbacks will include Passmore, A. N. Other and Popham. Jimmie Sherratt, Collins, Robinson, Brown and Mulcahy will be on the forward line.

The Canadian Scottish will have a number of new faces on their lineup. Between the sticks for the regiment will be Balfour Straith, who is making his first appearance in local football.

Dyer and Grant will be the backs, while the halfbacks will be Ernie Harwood, Harrison and Woolridge. The forward line will include Carey, Jackson, Stuart, Clarkson and Carter. The Scottish have been holding weekly workouts and the team is in the best of condition.

Fight Second Only To Dempsey-Firpo Bout Says Patrick

Man in Street Wonders Whether Big Crowds Will Gather Without a Dempsey

"Breaks" Decides Most Important Events; Arguing Will Not Change Decision

By LESTER PATRICK

Chicago, Sept. 23.—It's all over now, but to me it was a battle of thrills, second only to the clash between Jack Dempsey, then champion, and Luis Firpo, challenger, in New York several years ago. That fight did not last two rounds, but I never expect to see so much action again in a ring.

The fight last night went the limit and it was my good fortune to have a seat at close range, probably sixty feet from the principals. Both Tunney and Dempsey were beautiful pictures of manhood as they stripped for action, and both gave everything they had. Dempsey was a far different man to the Dempsey who floundered around so badly at Philadelphia last year. He certainly thrilled not only his admirers but also those who were pulling for Tunney. For courage you can not match him with any other man in the ring. He can assimilate so much punishment it seem there is no man capable of knocking him out. He was the sentimental favorite by a wide margin for the fight, and he certainly tried to put over a win.

ARGUMENTS DO NOT HELP

There will be plenty or arguments over that "long count" in the seventh round when Tunney was on the floor, but it went and Tunney won, and that is all that counts now. I have seen "breaks" like that occur in hockey and other games, but once the decision is made all the arguing and wrangling will not change it. You may make yourself think you gained a moral victory, but that does not help in the record books. To-day Tunney stands the winner and Dempsey did not succeed in staging the comeback which he had so carefully planned.

But great as Dempsey was in defeat, Tunney must not be overlooked. He took plenty of punishment and proved himself a real champion. Since he won the title there has been a feeling that he was not in the class of previous champions, but last night he showed all the qualities of greatness.

The spectacle was not as brilliant as the Dempsey-Tunney bout at Philadelphia last year, as the illumination suffered in comparison, but the crowd was larger and noisier.

BALLYHOO RIGHT

This time the great ballyhoo surrounding the fight produced the goods. Everyone was satisfied with the fight. One show of this kind a year is plenty.

It is a question whether great gates, such as last night's, will be attracted without a Dempsey. The man in the street believes that Jack's style of fighting has caused the heavyweight matches to draw such fine crowds.

I had a great thrill, enjoyed the fight and my hat is off to Tunney.

RICKARD SMILES WHEN TOLD "GATE" TOTALS $2,658,660

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The receipts of the Tunney-Dempsey fight were $2,658,660, the record gate of pugilism, promoter Rickard announced to-day.

The gate was $763,660 more than the battle of the Sesqui last year when Tunney and Dempsey fought for the first time.

Rickard's famous poker face was wreathed in smiles to-day when the checkup revealed the staggering gate receipts. It was his greatest triumph financially, and competitively. The receipts topped the Dempsey-Carpentier fight by $1,032,080, and the Firpo battle by $1,576,070.

Oaklands School Lacrosse Team to Play in Vancouver

To meet Vancouver to-morrow afternoon in the second game of the home and home series for the junior lacrosse championship of the province, the Oaklands School lacrosse team will leave for Vancouver to-night.

The locals will enter the game with a three-goal lead, obtained in the first game played here last Saturday when the locals gained a 7-4 victory.

The following players will make the trip:

Goal, Bridgewood; point, Cockin; cover point, C. Chapman; defence, Merriman, Borde, Smith; centre, Duckworth; third home, Miller; second home, G. Chapman; first home, R. Williams, outside home, C. McKenzie; inside home, G. Johnson; spares, Armstrong, Partington, Viggers and McMillan.

Boston, Sept. 23—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, world's welterweight boxing champion, lost a ten-round decision bout to Johnny Indrisano, peppery young East Boston fighter, here last night. The title was not at stake.

ANCIENT MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WERE STUDIED FOR FILM

The ancient idea of music included more complicated instruments than any "trap man" to-day can produce, according to Frank E. Woods of Associated Authors, who supervised the filming of "Richard the Lion-hearted," a screen adaptation of Sir Walter Scott's "The Talisman," an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release; at the Coliseum Theatre.

Weeks of research work in preparation for screening this production established the fact that King Richard and his Crusaders took with them an unusually interesting array of musical instruments when they marched to Palestine. Reproductions of these instruments were made to order and are used in the film.

A Norman fiddle, built either with two or three strings, and played with a bow, is one of the queer instruments. It is the grandparent of the present-day 'cello, and built with a neck as long as a giraff's. Other popular instruments of the day which appear in the picture are the double flute; a cathare, which is a table instrument resembling a modern zither; several kinds of harps; fifes; hunting horns which were used not only in hunting but also by officers in giving signals and trumpets which were used by heralds before ceremonies.

LON CHANEY IS APPLE GROWER IN SPARE TIME

Lon Chaney, master of strange disguises, in private life has a gentler calling. He is an apple farmer. Among the famous star's interests is an apple farm, in the mountains near San Pernardino, and apple culture is one of his keenest hobbies. Chaney is at the Dominion Theatre in "The Unknown," his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer mystery play, in which he appears as a sinister armless sideshow freak in a Spanish circus.

OLD-TIME DRESS WAS CUMBERSOME SAYS FILM STAR

"They didn't dress for comfort in those days," is the way Anne Cornwall sums up the feminine dress situation as it was in the early '70's. Not that Miss Cornwall's memory goes back that far but rather that the actress had to wear the garb of the period for several weeks.

Miss Cornwall is a member of the cast of "The Flaming Frontier," the Universal production that is at the Columbia Theatre this week. Others in the cast are Hoot Gibson, Dustin Farnum, Kathleen Key, Ward Crane, Eddie Gribbon, Harold Goodwin, Harry Todd, George Fawcett and Charles K. French. The picture was directed by Edward Sedgwick, who also wrote the story. The action of the picture takes place in the '70's and has for its climax a massacre, when five troops were wiped out.

"Summer must have been days of torture for the poor dears who had to dress like this," continued Miss Cornwall, pointing to her long, trailing dress with its bustle, "and I can't understand how they stood it. And look at this skirt gathering up all the dirt and dust of street and sidewalk. Give me the dress of to-day. It is much more comfortable, is freer and easier."

MYSTERY STORY IS CAPITOL SHOWING WITH STRONG CAST

Acclaimed by critics everywhere as a most mystifying drama, "The Cat and the Canary," with an all-featured cast, is at the Capitol Theatre this week.

The play is a screen adaptation of John Willard's great stage success of the same name and was directed by Paul Leni, who recently came to produce pictures under the Universal banner.

The story concerns six relatives, who go to the supposedly haunted house of a deceased uncle at the hour of midnight to hear his will read. The attorney, who reads the will is mysteriously murdered and suspicion in turn falls on each of the six principals. How the real murderer is finally detected is one of the most absorbing mystery tales imaginable.

Laura La Plante plays the starring role and is supported by an exceptionally strong cast, including Arthur Edmund Carew, Creighton Hale, Forrest Stanley, Gertrude Astor, Tully Marshall, George Siegmann, Flora Finch and Martha Mattox.

The adaptation was made by Alfred Cohn.

The specialties at the Capitol Theatre this week include one of the most unique presentations that has ever been offered here, namely, Diggon's creations in crepe paper, twelve living models in character costume. This act also offers Irene Minter, artiste pupil of Miss Mona Jewell, the local danseuse, in a dainty terpsichorean creation. Others on the stage this week are Bob Witt, the noted ukelele artist of the vitaphone and record fame, and Harriet Murton a delightful coloratura soprano in song selections.

TORONTO UNIVERSITY TO MARK CENTENARY

Representatives of Many Nations to Attend Celebration Next Month

Toronto, Sept. 23.—(By the Canadain Press).—On March 15, 1927, the University of Toronto completed the first century of its history which began in 1827, when His Majesty King George IV gave official approval to the charter of King's College, an educational century which was then gradually becoming a reality in the back-woods province of Upper Canada.

Arrangements have now been completed for the proper celebration of the University Centenary, and the days of October 5 to 8 have been set aside for suitable celebrations in connection with that occasion. Invitations have been issued to every important university and learned society throughout the world, and it is expected that there will arrive in Toronto in response to these invitations 215 delegates, representatives of many nations. Besides these official delegates the student body of the University of Toronto have also invited student delegates from various colleges throughout Europe, America and Canada, and it is expected that twenty-five of these will be the guests of the university body during the celebration.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Wednesday, October 5, will be set apart for student activities in connection with the centenary, and that evening Hart House will be the scene of the undergraduates' centenary ball, which promises to surpass anything yet held in that building. On Thursday and Friday mornings lectures on some aspect of Canadian History since Confederation will be given in Convocation Hall by the Prime Minister of Quebec, Hon. Taschereau, and the Prime Minister of Ontario, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson. The opening ceremony and reception of delegates will take place on the afternoon of Thursday in the university arena. Immediately following that there will be the dedication of the carilion which is being at present erected in the Soldiers' Memorial Tower. On Friday evening the 6,000 graduates of the university, who will be returning for the centenary celebration, will hold their centenary ball in Hart House.

SPORT EVENTS

The rugby game between McGill and Variety on Saturday and the inter-faculty track meet on Friday will be the chief sport events, while an undergraduates' parade with floats on the campus and through the city will form one of the spectacles for the entertainment of the guests and others.

The celebration will conclude with divine service on Sunday afternoon in the university arena, conducted by the Hon. and Rev. Dr. Cody, to which everybody is welcome. Music will be provided by the Mendelssohn choir.

It is anticipated that with guests and delegates, staff, graduates and undergraduates, 15,000 persons will participate in the centenary celebration programme.

PAINS ALL OVER BODY

Two More Cases of Feminine Illness Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Barrington, N. S.—"I had terrible feelings, headaches, back and side aches and pains all over my body. I would have to go to bed every month and nothing would do me good. My husband and my father did my work for me as I have two children and we have quite a big place. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then got a little book about it through the mail, and my husband sent to Eaton's and got me a bottle, and then we got more from the store. I am feeling fine now and do all my work and am able to go out around more. I tell my friends it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that makes me feel so well."—Mrs. VICTOR RICHARDSON, Barrington, Nova Scotia.

Dull Pains in Back

St. Thomas, Ont.—"I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found great relief from the dull, heavy pains in the small of my back and the weakness from which I suffered for five years after my boy was born. After taking the Vegetable Compound and using Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash I am feeling better than I have for the past seven years, and advise my friends to take it."—Mrs. F. INDIANS NAMED SLAVE LAKES AND RIVER IN CANADA

Ottawa, Sept. 23 (By the Canadian Press).—How is it that in a country like Canada, where slavery has never been an institution, the word "slave" should enter into the names of prominent geographical features, such as Great Slave Lake, Slave River and Lesser Slave Lake?

A statement, furnished by the Geographic Board of Canada, throws an interesting sidelight on the history of the Northwest and upon Indian customs. Indian place-names, it points out, may refer to physical characteristics of the place, to incidents in the history of the tribe, or to association of a tribe with a region.

Examples may be seen in Saskatchewan River (swift flowing), Battle River (place of numerous battles) and Ottawa River (river frequented by the Ottawa tribe). Another point is that Indian tribes generally had two names—the name they gave themselves and the name given them by their enemies—and in many cases the names which have been used by the white man have been "enemy" names. This accounts for the very uncomplimentary names which some Indian tribes bear. The record then proceeds to the effect that Great and Lesser Slave Lakes and Slave River were named from a tribe of Indians which once dwelt in that region. These Indians called themselves Etchareottine, which means "the people dwelling in the shelter of the (Rocky) mountains." In contradistinction to other northern Indians who were caribou eaters and traveled widely in pursuit of game, the Etchareottines were fish eaters and kept to the lakes.

SHOWED CONTEMPT

When the more warlike Crees went on the warpath against the tribes on the Peace River they came from the south in canoes to Lesser Slave Lake, and leaving their canoes there, proceeded overland. It is therefore readily to be understood how war parties of Crees, finding that the lake-dwelling Indians did not possess their own war-like attributes and ideas, should show their contempt by bestowing on the lake-dwellers the epithet "awonak" or "slaves."

The first white man to viist Great Slave Lake was Samuel Hearne, who reached the southeastern portion of the lake in 1772. He did not meet any Slave Indians and the name he applied to the lake was "Athapusco," meaning, possibly, the lake of the Athapascan Indians. The name is not known to-day, old Indians referring to the lake as "big lake." It is to Peter Pond that we owe the present name. On his maps, 1790, we find the names "Iotchninine," another form of Etchareottine, "Great Slave," and "Slave."

Lesser Slave Lake is mentioned by Sir Alexander Mackenzie who learned of the lake in 1792 from Indian hunters, the latter stating that it was called Slave Lake by the Crees after its original inhabitants.

Murdered sleep

SLEEP that brings no soothing rest. Empty sleep—that drives tense nerves and aching muscles back to weary bodies! No wonder people crack and break when precious sleep is murdered.

What a tragedy that so few realize the suffering constipation causes! It ruins health and wrecks beauty. It saps strength. It murders sleep! It sickens the body and causes disease after disease. And it could all be so easily relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely, promptly.

Why part-bran products fail!

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines — gently distending them—purifying, removing poisonous wastes. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is so small that there is seldom enough to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

No need for habit-forming pills!

How different from dangerous pills and drugs—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased! ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its flavor. Serve with other cereals. In soups. Try recipes on every package. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Don't accept a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants — on diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in London, Ontario. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Wall Street TO-DAY

Last Minute News on Stocks and Financial Affairs

Wall Street Journal's Review of To-day's Stock Market Over B.C. Bond Corporation's Direct Well Street Leased Wire to The Victoria Times

New York, Sept. 23—The evening edition of The Wall Street Journal says:

Price moves to-day were a distinct disappointment to the bear faction. The increase of brokers' loans caused some uneasiness. This development fostered the expectation of further declines in pivotal stocks. Instead, the leaders displayed a better tone from the start of trading. Although the rally did not display great vigor, it was consistently maintained. Transactions fell off substantially in volume when prices turned reactionary. This indicated an absence of important liquidation and suggested recent selling had some from the selling element.

In addition to the signs of sound technical condition, the market was helped by the prospect of more comfortable conditions in the call loan market next week. While the rate held at 4 per cent ample accommodations for over the week-end were available and no calling of loans appeared.

That the additional expansion in collateral borrowings at this centre was ignored was unquestionably due to the small proportion of the nation's total bank reserves which these loans are absorbing.

The New York Federal Reserve member banks while showing an increase of $11,800,000 in temporary accommodation this week, with total discounts at $123,162,000 are nevertheless borrowing $65,000,000 less, than they were a year ago. The force of this is better understood when it is realized that the fifty-two reporting banks in New York City, which accounts for $74,000,000 of the borrowings from the New York Reserve Bank, show an increase in their own total loans and discounts to customers of approximately $600,000,000. Their total loans and investments stand at $6,734,002,000, an increase over a year ago of $556,000,000. The New York City banks are borrowing from the Federal Reserve in ratio of less than 1.2 per cent of their own total loans and investments.

Calumet and Arizona was a leader of the copper shares, moving up 3½ points to 81. This was its best price since 1919. This gain was accompanied by reports of favorable developments on the company's Bisbee property. Calumet is attractive on a yield basis.

To-day's Mining Markets

Hits New High

On buying of big blocks, George Copper climbed to a new high of 93 on the Victoria Stock Exchange to-day, and closed with 93 bid for the stock. Yesterday afternoon it sold at 92 in Vancouver.

Big Missouri, which has been under pressure in Vancouver the last few days, started to recover to-day, and on heavy buying climbed two points to 31.

Porter-Idaho is holding around 28 to 29 in both markets.

Premier sold at 225 and 226 in Vancouver to-day, but this market was far behind Toronto, where the market closed 235 bid.

Dunwell took another nose dive in Vancouver this morning, and made a new low there of 35. A low price of 35 was established on the Victoria market early in the week. There were no bids for the stock in the Victoria market to-day, as selling orders over brokers' counters showed another increase.

Silverado came up strong at the close to-day with 39 bid for the stock.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

Winnipeg, Sept. 23—Percy White says: "It looks like an excellent speculative chance to me to buy December and March in Chicago and sell Winnipeg December or May. The Winnipeg market, if weather holds good, will shortly have to absorb a very heavy hedging pressure. During this period Winnipeg could easily lose a few cents compared with the Chicago market."

Winnipeg, Sept. 23—Wheat—Unexpectedly cables, Liverpool closing up, when they were due to come slightly lower, combined with a somewhat unfavorable weather forecast for Western Canada, scattered showers being predicted for all three provinces, gave the market a strong tone to-day and wheat prices advanced two cents on the extreme bulge. Trade volume was not large and offerings were anything but liberal. The weather has been very favorable the past few days, and the threshing has made good headway, but the weather is still extremely vital to market action, especially to Winnipeg wheat, as the wheat movement is later and good sized short interest is said to exist in this delivery. Delivery in the country was 2,500,000 bushels but receipts here are small so far. Pool reported a fair business overnight in old crop wheat and some hard exporters are said to be doing a fine business for October, November and December shipment. There is a moderate demand for cash wheat from mills and shippers but offerings still remain light. The strength in Liverpool was said to be due to bullish news from Australia, where rains are badly needed in some important areas. Argentine Government estimates wheat acreage at 19,480,000 acres or 230,000 larger than last year's. Crop conditions in that country are said to be mostly favorable following the recent rains.

Flax—Stronger in sympathy with the general upward trend in all grains. Trade small, no particular feature. Final figures 1½ to 1 up.

CHICAGO GRAIN

(By B.C. Bond direct pit wire)

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Wheat: Moderate gains made early as the result of strong cables were maintained throughout, mainly because there was not much selling pressure and trading was quiet. There was some selling believed to be hedging by houses with northwestern connections. The weather in the Canadian Northwest was favorable for threshing operations, but the forecast was for showers. Export demand moderate, with sales of 500,000 bushels reported by the seaboard. Broomhall reported conditions in parts of Australia as critical, and the Argentine needs rain.

Corn: There was selling of corn today because of the favorable weather conditions over the belt, and the forecast for warmer weather with showers. A good recovery occurred late in the session, due perhaps to the strength in wheat and short covering, and prices held near the top at the close. Reports from the country continue to stress the lateness of the crop, especially in Illinois. Would not press the selling side.

Oats—Shorts were satisfied on an early bulge and the market was easier later, with scattered hedging and limited support. Still favorable to purchases of oats on recessions.

Liverpool due ⅛ to ¼ up.

NEW FORD CAR COMING LATE

New York, Sept. 23.—The New York American this morning says that it may be stated that the new Ford car will not make an appearance in time to be a factor in this year's automobile market.

By Branson Brown & Co. Ltd.

New York, Sept. 23—Mixed movements were featured to-day. There was a market let-down in the turnover with short covering in the afternoon stimulating the recovery. Coppers were higher and some shifting into the section accounted for the rallying tendency. Greene Cananea and Calumet Arizona were the leading issues at new high levels. Rail issues trended with the general market selling at their best levels in the afternoon. Motors were featured by the strength in Nash Motors. The buying of the Nash was promoted by the announcement of the fifty cents extra declared for this quarter and the company's favorable earning display.

New York, Sept. 23 (By Bronson Brown leased wire)—Witney to-day says:

"Irrespective of general market conclusions, which certainly point to a rally from this level, whether or not a new general advance is set into motion, I believe selected issues will engage in their individual advances without further delay.

"The general market is of interest only so far as it appears to be clearly divided into two classes of issues, first, those which were over-hulled recently and which are now providing the weight of liquidation, and second, those issues to see their best prices and which are simply awaiting the settling point to be made in the first group as a means of starting another installment of their own advances.

"I believe that, after some possible initial decline in to-day's market rallying tendencies will soon make their appearance and provide the means for our special issues starting up again.

"General Motors may rally somewhat, but I believe it can be bought lower later on. Hold Calumet and Arizona."

MONTREAL STOCKS

(By B.C. Bond Direct Wire)

Montreal, Sept. 23.—Montreal stock market resumed its forward movement. Dominion Bridge and Steel of Canada were the leaders. Although the volume of trading was not heavy this morning there was general improvement in the tone of the local market during the morning session. It looks as if the reaction had been brought to an end for the time being at least. Dominion Bridge and Steel of Canada shared the leadership, both gaining 5½ points. Dominion Glass closed at noon at 130, compared with 129 yesterday. Alcohol touched a high of 39¾, later easing to 39 and closed at 39¼. Massey Harris moved up one to 38, but later eased to 38¼. Dominion Textile gained 3 at 134, but reacted to 133. Cement was dull and closed at 243, down one. Asbestos preferred gained ¾ to 94¾. Shawinigan, ex-dividend, 50c, made up its rate by changing hands at 89½. Brazilian declined ¼ to 189, then rallied to 190¼, closing at 190. The most important change in the paper group was the two point advance in Spanish River common to 104, with the high at the close. The preferred was unchanged.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"The Wife & Co."

By LYLE HAMILTON

He laughed. "We're trading places, aren't we?" Without further comment he took her arm, and leaving the car outside helped her up the steps.

"Hello — I missed this." As he opened the door a calling card became visible upon the floor. Picking it up he continued: "It's Mrs. Potter's. She's scribbled a line on it: 'Call me up.' Wonder what the old lady wants?"

CHAPTER XXXV.

In order to get Mrs. Potter on the telephone it was necessary first to call up a neighborhood delicatessen store. The stout and leisurely proprietress would answer in course of time, would say "what?" and then "yah," and finally would dispatch an urchin to call Mrs. Potter, if an urchin could be found. If not, whoever called could wait.

Molly had been through this experience before. With something like a groan she propped her tired body against the wall and called the food shop. Brownell, anxious over his wife's fatigue, had produced enough cold provisions from the kitchen for a reasonably nourishing meal, and had set the table before Molly was through at the telephone.

Hanging up the receiver she tossed her hat to the table and sank into a chair. "I'm so hungry I could eat a doormat," she said, "and tired!"

"What did Mrs. Potter want?" inquired Brownell, cutting a slice of bread.

"Wanted to know when we're going to introduce her to old Frazier," Molly laughed shortly. "It'd serve him right if she married him."

"What did you tell her?"

"Oh, I said I'd invite him here to dinner to-morrow night, and if he accepted I'd let her know and she could come to." Molly buttered a bit of bread. "It's a scream, Bob!"

His face expressed mild surprise. "I thought you hated Frazier."

"I do, of course," she said. "But Bob, I've tramped up and down this town all day and didn't find the sign of a job. Maybe I'll have to go back to work for him after all."

"I'm boss now—you might come and work for me," he suggested, grinning.

"Little Swedie. Poor kid—her face is all green and dull yellow."

"Swedie! You mean you dictate to her?" Molly stiffened.

"Sure—she's the best steno in the shop, except that fellow—the old man's secretary."

"Bob, I should think you'd hate to dictate to a woman." Molly had lost interest in her meal. "Especially Mary Holmquist. You know yourself that she always was a flirt."

"Her?" Brownell laughed. "If little Swedie can flirt with her face all bunged up the way it is, she's the champion of her class!"

"But her face'll get well. You said it would yourself. Bob, wouldn't it be better if you hired a man?"

"It might be," he admitted. "A man can do lots of things a girl can't. But it wouldn't be fair to fire Swedie now—and besides, I don't think Frazier'd stand for it."

"You might fire one of the other girls," Molly suggested. "Then Mary could do the work that one does, and the new man could do yours."

Brownell took a helping of cold canned corn that he had poured from the tin into a soup bowl. "Men stenographers are hard to get," he said. "If they're any good they get promoted right away—they're hardly ever out of job. Bum ones are just as bad as bum girls."

Molly sat with her cheek in her hand, considering. "Probably it'll be better if you hire me," she said. "It'll make talk if you keep on dictating to some other girl."

"Don't see why it'd make talk," Brownell argued. "It didn't make talk when Sticko dictated to Swedie nor when Frazier dictated to you."

"Don't you want me in your office?" Molly dropped her hand and furrows of care appeared on her forehead.

"Of course I do," he declared. "That is, if you're bound to work at all, I'd like you to be where I can see you. I'll speak to Frazier about it to-morrow."

"Why do you have to speak to him? You're office manager now, aren't you?"

"Sure I am—but if a fellow hires his own wife, and pays her the company's money, it's like boosting his pay without permission. I'd better see Frazier."

"I should think you'd be more independent," said Molly.

Some cold coffee was in the bottom of the pot and Brownell poured a cup of the liquid for himself. "Suppose you call up Frazier now and ask him to dinner," he suggested. "That may help sweeten him up."

Molly had returned to the sketchy meal that lay before her, and she tasted a spoonful of the corn. With a grimace she dropped the spoon and took a slice of bread, which she covered with jelly. Bearing this in her hand she returned to the telephone, and munched while she waited for an answer from Mr. Frazier's house.

It chanced that he was at home, and Molly, brightening her voice, extended him a cordial invitation to dinner.

"We'd love so to have you," she said.

He spoke a moment at the other end of the wire.

"No, don't dress. Bob hasn't any dinner coat, anyway. There'll only be one other guest—an old friend." Molly said goodbye and hung up the receiver. "He'll come," she added to Bob. "I'm so tired—will you call Mrs. Potter and tell her?"

Brownell solicitiously helped her to the couch, where she reclined full length. Then he called the number of the delicatessen shop.

"Will you please ask Mrs. Potter to come to the phone?" he asked.

There was a jangle of words, a sharp disturbance, and the instrument clanged. Bob retreated, rubbing his ear. "That woman said she'd called Mrs. Potter once and that was enough," he explained. "She hung up on me."

"Oh, bother!" Molly turned upon the couch. "What'll we do?"

"The roadster's outside," her husband said. "Shall we hop into it and go see the old lady? It won't take long."

"I wouldn't go out again to-night for $100," Molly announced. "Bob—you go. I'll lie here and rest."

"Just the way I feel after a hard day around town," he said, bringing a cover and throwing it over her. "Feel as if I'd break in two if I had to go out again." He bent and kissed her. "Be back in two shakes, Mollykins."

As he went out, Molly threw her arm over her eyes to shield them from the light, and in a few moments was asleep. She did not stir until her husband returned and tiptoed to her side. Then she sat up, blinking drowsily.

"I've got the car tucked away in the garage now," he told her. "Mrs. Potter'll come, with bells on."

Molly yawned and smiled at the same time. "I'll bet she wears her panne velvet. She makes it over every year to keep up with the styles."

Brownell let down the bed, and whiel his wife prepared to retire he cleared the dishes from the dining-room table and carried them to the kitchen, where he gave them a hasty rinsing in hot water. Then he went to the bathroom, and filled the tub for his own bath.

"You didn't ask me about my first day as a boss, Mollykins," he called; thrusting his head through the door.

"Tell me about it to-morrow, Bobsie. I'm almost asleep." She snuggled her head into the pillow, and was breathing regularly, with half-parted lips, when he stole a tiptoe from the bathroom to open the windows.

There was no occasion next day for Molly to go down town. The employment agency was to call her by telephone if a place should be found. Nothing was to be done about her job as Bob's secretary until her husband had conferred with Mr. Frazier. Besides the morning housework, there was the big dinner to be made ready for the evening, and Molly's hands were full at home.

She bustled about her cleaning until noon. Then, after a hasty lunch, she went out to buy provisions. A roast of beef, ready-cooked and tempting, was under a glass in the dealer's showcase. She bought the roast. Next to it was a potato salad. She bought a pound of this, also. With these, and a can of soup, a loaf of bread, a quarter of a pound of butter, a head of lettuce, a jar of mayonnaise and a pie, she made her way home, heavily laden but happy. Housekeeping can be made easy. She sang as she began to lay the table for company.

Evening came, and it was Mrs. Potter who arrived first. Bob had telephoned that he could not be home until after six.

"Where's that man—that Tracy?" Mrs. Potter demanded as she swept into the living-room.

"You mean Mr. Frazier?" asked Molly, shaking hands while her eye took in the red velvet, the rakish hat and the bright Morocco shoes with which her guest was adorned.

"Whatever his name, I'm set for him." She held up her chin. "Had my face massaged. How does it look?"

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"I think your hair needs fluffing out a little at the sides," Molly said, after a critical inspection.

She was reaching out to make the change, but Mrs. Potter pushed her firmly away. "You let me alone. I fixed that hair myself," said she. "Did that idiot of a girl get the wrinkles out of my face? She worked long enough!"

"Your face looks nice," said Molly, tactfully. "How do you like my table?"

She led her ex-landlady into the dining-room, where she proudly displayed the new china, and the bright new silver on the white cloth, and a bunch of carnations that she had purchased for the centre.

"Who got your dinner for you?" Mrs. Potter inquired.

"I did." Molly was patting the napkins that lay beside each place. "Aren't my napkins pretty?"

"All napkins are pretty before you spill the soup on 'em," stated the guest. "Who showed you how to cook the dinner?"

"Nobody at all." It didn't seem necessary to explain that the cooking had been done before she bought the food.

"Maybe you'll amount to something yet," Mrs. Potter returned to the living-room and took up a position on the couch, commanding a direct view of the door. "When is that man coming?"

"He's due now," Molly said. She returned to the kitchen to inspect the meat that was warming in the oven, and to rearrange the potato salad on its bed of lettuce leaves.

Brownell came in a few moments, warmly greeted Mrs. Potter, and sought Molly where she hovered over the stove. There was a worried look in his eyes, and she noticed it at once.

"What's the matter—can't Mr. Frazier come?" she asked, as he stooped to kiss her.

"He's on his way. I just left him at the office. But, Mollykins—he says he can't have a husband and wife working together in his office."

LETTER GOLF

THE RULES

1. The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW TO HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2. You can change only one letter at a time.
3. You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each jump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4. The order of letters cannot be changed.

TO-MORROW'S HOROSCOPE

"The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel"

(Copyright)

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1927

This should be a fairly fortunate day, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government helpful to inventors and other constructive thinkers.

The sway presages many remarkable new pieces of machinery which will revolutionize certain methods of manufacturing, and will reduce the cost of certain much-used articles.

Women are especially lucky under this direction of the stars, which clarifies their views on public questions and enables them to attain prominence.

This is read as a fairly favorable wedding day, although it presages domination on the part of the wife.

There is a promising sign for actors and actresses to-day, but they are to find many new conditions prevailing in the world of the theatre, after the next two years, astrologers foretell.

Thought is to be uplifted and spiritualized in the next decade, the seers prophesy, for true art is to lead the people in certain American cities.

Under this direction of the seers many sensational subjects will be presented to the public and frankly discussed, it is foretold.

Children are to command much attention and the nation will seek new methods of caring for the poor and conserving their interests.

A London astrologer predicts for December the fall of the British Cabinet and attendant troubles for the Government.

While the stars are supposed to influence great world events, they also are believed to affect insignificant matters and it is predicted that women will turn to old-fashioned ideas in dress and coiffure.

Persons whose birthday it is will have a happy and prosperous year, after some disappointments. Children born on this day will be ambitious and successful.

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

hand right on Dempsey's chin after chasing him to a corner. Another right missed and Dempsey smashed a left to the body and three lefts to the chin before Tunney could tie him up. Hands high. Jack dodged away from a right. There was little action as they sparred carefully in the centre. Tunney's left was short but Dempsey merely fell into a clinch. Gene missed two more lefts while Jack clipped two short left hooks to the body as Dempsey lunged low. Tunney missed again but managed to catch himself and fleck two soft lefts to Jack's face as the round ended.

ROUND 3

Again they boxed carefully, slowly in the centre of the ring. Dempsey apparently was trying to tantalize Tunney into leading and making an open fight of it. Tunney sneaked over a pretty left jab but took a half-dozen raps on the back of the neck. Gene took the offensive, driving Dempsey into the ropes, where Jack tied him up tight. As they bobed in the centre Tunney led and fell into Dempseys' straight right smash to the body. Gene held while Jack clouted both hands to the midsection. A right smash to the heart drove Tunney back. As they fiddled about Dempsey wove in close again and rapped the back of Tunneys' head with his right.

ROUND 4

Dempsey took the offensive but Tunney's right cracked on his chin. Gene's left found the same mark. While Dempsey rapped two lefts to the body Gene complained that the blows were foul and fought Jack desperately as they fell against the ropes. Gene missed with a right and took another left to the body. Jack was leading again now, short lefts to the body, while Tunney countered just as lightly to the head, Tunney trying to nail Jack coming in, missed with both hands, but saved himself by falling into a clinch. Two right smashes to the chin stung Dempsey. Gene lifted two more left hooks to the head and nailed Dempsey on the ropes. A right sent Dempsey reeling into the corner. A left hook nearly floored him. As Dempsey lay against the ropes stunned, Tunney missed with both hands, and the bell killed his opportunity.

ROUND 5

Dempsey's handlers worked furiously on him during the intermission while Tunney's handlers yelled that the stimulants were unfair. Tunney missed a right and they fell into a clinch. Jack fell in close pounding to the body when Tunney, over anxious, missed again. Jack backed away now, falling into the ropes as Tunney took the attack. When Jack tied him up they sparred out to the centre of the ring. Dempsey bobbed out of three left jabs. He sent Tunney's head back with a stiff straight left. A right high on the temple shook Dempsey badly. The champion backed away, however, content to jab and wait. In another clinch Jack rapped again on the back of Tunney's neck. Gene dug two nice lefts into Dempsey's body at the bell.

ROUND 6

They boxed carefully several seconds before coming together for a flurry of body punches. The crowd bellowed as Dempsey's right hand "Old Iron Mike," smashed under Tunney's heart. But the champion came back ripping both hands to the chin. Dempsey, tiring, fell into a clinch after the blows. Jack turned the champion half-way around with a right hook to the head. Tunney came back strong with two more left hooks and a straight right stung the champion. Missing a long left Jack took a right under the heart as they fell again into a clinch.

ROUND 7

Dempsey's handlers pleaded with him to keep his chin down. As he came out bobbing, weaving under Tunney's right, Jack slapped a soft right to the ribs. A volley of right and left hooks to the head floored Tunney for the count of nine. Dempsey was on him as a wildcat as Gene reeled backwards around the ring. Dempsey followed in close with a smashing body attack. Wobbly and dazed Tunney only could jump and flounder backwards. Dempsey cornered him at the ropes and smashed a left and right to the body. Gene came back weakly, jabbed a left to the head. Dempsey laughed and urged Gene to come in and fight. Losing his temper Jack smashed Tunney with left and right swings to the head. Gene, badly dazed, grabbed Dempsey with both hands and still was holding at the bell.

ROUND 8

Dempsey came out in a crouch. Gene stabbed with his left and clinched. As Tunney back-pedalled furiously Dempsey made no effort to catch him, merely walking after him and taunting him to fight. Tunney did fight, whipping a left and right uppercut to Jack's chin. As they missed rights Dempsey lifted his left to the jaw. In a clinch Jack again punched Tunney's head. A smashing left to the body drove Tunney back and a right to the heart made him grab Jack. As Dempsey dodged a right he slipped to one knee for no count. Taking courage, Tunney flew at Dempsey, pumping both hands to the head. Again Tunney nailed Jack with both hands to the chin as the former champion bounded out of the ropes. They were boxing cautiously, both tired, waiting for openings as the round ended.

ROUND 9

Tunney's retreating tactics draw boos from the crowd. Jack grabbed the champion and smashed him half a dozen times on the back of the head. They both had slowed up from the fierce pace. Tunney, standing in the centre of the ring, held Jack off for a few moments with three straight left jabs. But Jack bored right to close quarters. Coming in Gene's right opened a cut over Dempsey's right eye. The champion went after the wound fiercely. Snapping out both hands high to the head, Jack tried to bob with rights, but they bounced off his jaw. Dempsey was wobbly but as he cocked his right Gene ran away. The champion came back, however, and rocked Jack again with swinging smashes to the head. Dempsey came to his corner a bit wobbly as the gong sounded.

ROUND 10

They shook hands in the centre of the ring. Jack floored Tunney again with a left and right to the chin. Gene was up before the timer could start counting. Jack's right smashed into Gene's head again and the water from Jack's hair splashed over the ringside writers. Jack, the tiger, again whaled in with both hands but Tunney tied him up in a clinch. They paused and as Dempsey dropped his hands Tunney whipped a left and right hook into the Manassa Mauler's face.

Gene came in to the attack, ripping both hands to the head. While Dempsey appeared to tire, Gene laid him on the ropes, but the champion's two-handed attack was a bit wild. Dempsey dug several rights to the body. Gene countered wit ha left. Badly staggered Dempsey wobbled about the ring as the bell sounded.

The former champion, still groggy, sparred dizzily after the gong.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily and the Pendulum

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

(By Howard R. Garis)

Loud chattering shouts echoed through the forest. Uncle Wiggily could hear them but he could not see who was making the noise. He knew it could not be Mrs. Robin Red Breast for she was only faintly singing. Nor was it Dazie or Mazie Wogglejig, for those two little Wogglejig girls had lost their wooden heads, and without them they couldn't make a sound. And Uncle Wiggily knew that he was doing no shouting.

You remember, I hope, how the rabbit gentleman was watching Mazie and Dazie play in the woods, the wooden Wogglejigs mixing up their heads, legs and tails in the scramble game. But when it was almost school time Uncle Wiggily called to Mazie and Dazie to hurry or the Lady Mouse Teacher would mark them late.

But the funny part of it was that neither Dazie or Mazie could find their wooden heads. They pranced around without them, and though Uncle Wiggily looked he could not find the heads either.

Then along flew Mrs. Robin to tell about two funny eggs in the nest she and her husband were soon going to leave to fly to the warm South, there to hatch out their little robin children.

"What do you want me to do?" asked Jacko.

"Oh, I think I know what those funny eggs are in your nest," said the rabbit gentleman to Mrs. Robin. "They are the missing heads of Mazie and Dazie. Though how they ever got up so high I don't know."

"Neither do I," sang Mrs. Robin. "But I will lead you to my old nest. If the Winter storms do not tear it apart, Rob and I will use it next year when warm Summer will be here with us once more."

So, leading headless Dazie and Mazie by strings of grass, Mr. Longears followed the robin until, all of a sudden, those loud chattering shouts were heard.

"I hope that isn't a hunter with a gun wanting to shoot me," chirped Mrs. Robin.

"A hunter wouldn't make so much noise as that," said the rabbit. "Hunters go very quietly."

Just then Mrs. Robin fluttered her wings in alarm and said:

"Oh, see that funny pendulum!"

"Pendulum!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Where do you see a pendulum? There is no clock out here in the woods."

"But I see the pendulum swinging," went on Mrs. Robin. "And it is a long, hairy one. See it swaying to and fro!"

She pointed with the tip of one wing through the trees and, as she did so, Mr. Longears saw something dark brown, and hairy, with a patch of red on it, swinging from a tree branch.

"Why! Why! Bless my pink twinkling nose!" chuckled the rabbit gentleman, "I should know that pendulum. Really it isn't a pendulum at all!"

"What is it, then?" asked Mrs. Robin. "It makes noise enough for an alarm clock." And indeed this was so, for the swinging, hairy thing was chattering and shouting so that the forest echoed with the noise.

"It is Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey boy," said Uncle Wiggily. "He has on his red velvet jacket and he is swinging upside down by his tail. That is what makes him look like a clock pendulum. "Ho, Jacko!" called the rabbit. "Please come here. I have work for you!"

At once the pendulum ceased swinging and Jacko, for it was the monkey boy, stopped his jolly shouting and chatter and came bounding to meet Uncle Wiggily.

"What do you want, me to do?" asked Jacko.

"Climb up in the tree where Mrs. Robin's nest is," said the rabbit, "and carefully take out two funny eggs you will find there. They are not really eggs at all, but the round, wooden heads of Dazie and Mazie." Uncle Wiggily pointed to the Wogglejig girls.

"I'm the boy for climbing trees and bringing funny eggs out of nests!" cried Jacko. "And I put them up in there. I didn't know they were the heads of Mazie and Dazie," he went on. "I thought they were really Mrs. Robin's eggs that had fallen on the ground. So I put them up in the nest and then I began to sing and swing like a pendulum."

"Oh, you call it singing, do you?" chuckled Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes. Don't you?" asked the monkey boy. But the rabbit did not answer. Then Jacko climbed up to the nest and brought down the wooden heads of Mazie and Dazie, and when they were put on the neck pegs of the Wogglejig girls, they could talk and laugh again as before.

"We tried to tell you we weren't eggs when you picked us up off the ground," said Dazie as she and Mazie hurried on to school. "But you didn't listen to us."

"I guess I was singing," chattered the monkey boy, and Mr. Longears laughed again. But now everything was all right. And if the potato masher doesn't hide the rice pudding in the coffee pot, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bobby's big bounce.

Lady (to hotel clerk)—"Is Mr. Black stopping here?"

Clerk—"Yes, first floor, suite one."

Lady—"Sir!"

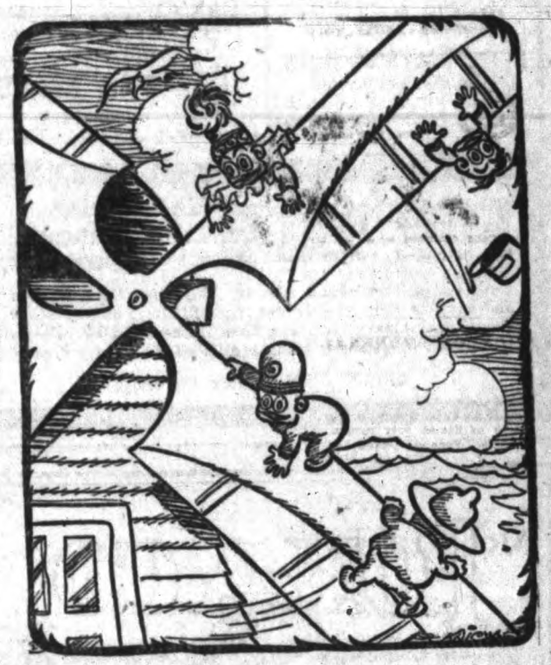
BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Woof! —By MARTIN

THE TINYMITES

BY MAL COCHRAN



READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

Right down the path the dog cart rode. The dog pulled quite a heavy load, and all the little Tinymites enjoyed it very much. Wee Clowny said, "We're going fast. I wonder how long this will last. If we should let this dog get lost, 'twill get us all in dutch."

Then Coppy snapped, "Oh, let's not fret. This old dog knows his way, I'll bet. I wonder where he's taking us, and is it very far." "Well, what's the difference?" Scouty said. "The hound is bound to go ahead. We might as well be satisfied, no matter where we are."

Up o'er a hill they gaily flew and saw a lot of sights quite new. The bunch was interested and they didn't even peep. And then some snoring filled the air and Carpy shouted, "I declare! Right on the floor of this smart cart, wee Clowny's gone to sleep."

The dog took one more jump and hop and then decided he'd best stop. "Wake up there, Clowny," shouted one. "Here's where we all depart." They all jumped to the ground and then it startled all the Tinies when the little dog ran on again and pulled away the cart.

And then the bunch heard Clowny cry, "Why, there's a windmill, right nearby. Let's ride upon the paddles. It will be a heap of fun. We'll climb up there from off the ground and get the thing to swinging 'round." So, toward the funny windmill all the bunch began to run.

They scampered up the windmill side so they could have their dandy ride. In getting on the paddles 'bout a half an hour was spent. Just then a breeze began to blow, and Clowny shouted, "Here we go!" And, sure enough, the windmill turned, and 'round and 'round they went.

ROYAL YEAST·CAKES

On the Royal Train

there were two Credenza Models of the new Orthophonic Victrola--with a fine collection of V.E. Orthophonic Victor Records

"Get the best of everything for His Royal Highness' entertainment" were the orders of the committee in charge of arrangements for the Dominion Tour of H. R. H. The Prince of Wales, Prince George, Premier Baldwin and party.

So naturally, the authorities in charge of the Prince's special train ordered new Orthophonic Victrolas for the luxurious rolling suite of the royal party.

Besides two Credenza Models, one for His Royal Highness and one for Mr. & Mrs. Baldwin and their daughter,—there went aboard two wonderful libraries of Victor records, specially and carefully chosen.

It was on this train,—superb in all its appointments, that His Royal Highness, The Prince and Premier Baldwin found each their choice of favorite Victor records—playing again and again the hits "At Sundown", "Hallelujah", "Me And My Shadow" and other tuneful Victor numbers.

Any home can have this princely entertainment. There is a choice of seven beautiful models—at seven prices ranging from $775.00 down to as low as $115.00—obtainable at His Master's Voice dealers on convenient payments.
